CHARGED WITH THREAT TO KILL SWEETHEART

Miss Rose Rishel, of Spring Mills, Has Former Lover Arrested.

PAUL LEITZEL IS IN JAIL

Committed to Prison in Default of $1000 Bail—Girl's Friends Fear that if Released He will Kill Her and Then Himself.

Charged with threatening to kill Miss Rose Rishel, of Spring Mills, with whom he was infatuated and who had tired of his attentions, Paul J. Leitzel, of Mifflinburg, was on Tuesday night lodged in the Bellefonte jail in default of $1,000 bail. Leitzel was committed to prison after a hearing before Squire Musser. Fearing that if released Leitzel will not only kill the girl but also himself, the friends of Miss Rishel will stoutly resist any attempt to give him his freedom. They believe that Leitzel's mind has become unbalanced on the one subject of his infatuation for the girl. Otherwise they regard him as perfectly sane.

It is alleged that Leitzel intercepted Miss Rishel in the woods, near Spring Mills, and that he declared:

"Either you will come or death will come."

At the time, Leitzel was armed with a revolver. Miss Rishel, so she testified at the hearing, feared that Leitzel might kill her and in order to escape, said that she would try and learn to again love him. W. H. Sinkabine, a friend of both Miss Rishel and Leitzel, succeeded after a time in securing possession of the revolver.

On Friday evening, last, Miss Rishel attended a Lutheran church convention, at Penn Hall. Leitzel was present when she arrived. On seeing her enter the hall, Leitzel, so it is alleged, went to Mr. Sinkabine and asked for the revolver, declaring to kill both Miss Rishel and himself. Mr. Sinkabine refused to turn over the revolver and a warrant was sworn out for Leitzel's arrest, it being feared that if allowed to remain at liberty he would carry out his threat.

It is also charged that he made numerous threats to kill the girl, these threats being contained in letters and on postal cards addressed to her at Spring Mills.

Leitzel, when taken to the jail following the hearing, remarked:

"Oh, I was drunk at the time."

According to the testimony brought out at the hearing, at which the witnesses were Miss Rishel and Mr. Sinkabine, Leitzel had been paying attention to the girl for some time prior to one year ago, when his father, James Leitzel, moved to Mifflinburg, where he had purchased a farm. Miss Rishel acknowledged her affection for Leitzel and anticipated that he would return and make her his wife. Some time after going to Mifflinburg Leitzel, whether in a spirit of fun or not, so it is alleged by Miss Rishel, wrote her numerous letters telling of the good times that he was having with other girls. Because of these letters Miss Rishel, so she testified, lost all interest in Leitzel and refused to receive any further attention from him.

Several weeks ago Leitzel called at the home of Squire Rishel, father of the girl, only to be denied admittance to the house. On May 14, it was testified, he intercepted Miss Rishel on the road. Miss Rishel was driving and Leitzel was riding a bicycle. He stopped her and it was then, so Miss Rishel swore, that he made the threat to kill her unless she consented to go with him. Mr. Sinkabine testified to what happened at the Lutheran church, at Penn Hall, when it is alleged that Leitzel asked for the revolver that he might kill both the girl and himself.

At the hearing before Squire Musser Miss Rishel produced a large bunch of letters, some of which she said contained threats on her life.

Miss Rishel is about 23 years of age. Leitzel is of about the same age.

Automobiles Have Spill.

Dr. M. J. Locke and J. Mitchell Cunningham had a narrow escape from serious injury while out with their automobiles several days ago. They met head-on, as railroaders say, at the crossing near Harry Miller's store, opposite the Yeager Swing factory. As to just which automobile took a cranky spell reports differ, although the result was that Dr. Locke's car came out of the mix-up without a scratch, while the Cunningham car was pretty badly stoved up.

"OLD VETS" DECORATED WAR GOVERNOR'S GRAVE

Honor Memory of Curtin With Impressive Ceremonies.

CHILDREN IN PARADE

March with Grand Army Post to Union Cemetery Rev. Fred W. Barry Delivers Address at Petrikin Hall—Wouldn't Ride in Autos.

Memorial Day was observed with appropriate services in Bellefonte, a feature of the ceremonies being the decoration of the grave of the late War Governor, Andrew Gregg Curtin. Taking charge of the beautiful wreath, sent by the Pennsylvania Reserves, of Philadelphia, the Bellefonte Post, No. 95, G. A. R., placed it upon Curtin's grave with impressive ceremony.

Early in the afternoon Gregg Post assembled at headquarters and then marched to the diamond. At the same time, the Coleville band and a squad of Company L, N. G. P., marched from the Armory and joined the old soldiers in front of the Court House. The procession then moved out Allegheny Street. Several hundred school children, carrying flags and under the supervision of Professor Jonas E. Wagner and the several teachers, were in waiting at the intersection of Allegheny and Howard Streets, and falling in line marched to the Union cemetery. Automobiles had been engaged to convey the old soldiers to the cemetery, but with Spartan spirit they refused to ride and made the journey on foot.

At the cemetery music was rendered by a male chorus, composed of Messrs. Harp, Blair, Bullock, Smith, Luckenbach, Schaffer, Rev. Mr. Winey and a number of veterans. Post Commander Amos Garbrick made a short address, which was followed by an ode and prayer by Chaplain William H. Musser, and while the band played softly flowers were strewn upon the graves of fallen heroes. Then came the decoration of Curtin's grave. With the placing of the floral piece from Pennsylvania Reserves William C. Heinle delivered a beautiful tribute to the old War Governor and the services were brought to a close with the firing of a volley by a squad from Company L.

Returning from the cemetery, the procession marched to Petrikin Hall, where Rev. Fred W. Barry delivered the memorial address. His remarks were well received and abounded in beautiful thoughts.

In keeping with the custom of many years, the flowers used to decorate the graves were contributed by the men, women and children of Bellefonte. Among those who gave flowers for this purpose were the following:

Malcolm Young, John Bradly, Earl Huff, Verna Ardery, Sarah Love, John Garbrick, Catharine Ryan, Jeanette Cook, Mrs. Joseph Garbrick, Mrs. David Miller, Mrs. John Martin, Mrs. Austin Brown, Mary Garbrick, William and Fred Osman, Earl L. Garbrick, Irene Armstrong, Grace Sausserman, Catharine Steel, C. C. Shuey, Joseph Jodon, Richard Herman, Betty Taylor, Emma Miller, May Hill, Edward Miller, Roy Miller, Harry Irwin, Helen Love, Edna Wolf, William H. Kline, Ruth Lyon, Mildred Eberhart, Francis Willard, Verona Fisher, Violet Wian, Lucy Hartsock, Bertha Hill, Clarence Turner, Lowell Meyer, William Monsell, Alice Meyer, Katharine Meyer, Mary Hartswick, Clarence Thompson, Harvey Hampton, Theresa Murphy, Helen Murphy, Margaret Murphy, Musser Gettig, Arnett Woodson, Mrs. Hazel M Tubbs, Thelma Lilliedahl, Thomas Purdue, Sarah Clerman, Elizabeth Shugart, Pauline Johnson, Clara Johnson, Anna Eckenroth.

FOUR-CLUB LEAGUE

Baseball With Bellefonte, Lock Haven Renovo and Jersey Shore.

By those who have been working to organize a Central Pennsylvania Baseball League, it is believed that the result will be a four-club combination and that the season will be opened about June 12. The four clubs now proposed for such a league are Bellefonte, Lock Haven, Renovo and Jersey Shore.

Managers J. Mitchell Cunningham and J. Linn Harris, of the Bellefonte club, will go to Lock Haven tonight to meet with the representatives of the three other towns proposed for the combination. It is expected that final arrangements will be completed at this meeting and that in about two weeks time the umpire will be heard calling: "Play Ball!"

Tyrone Clubhouse Opening.

The Tyrone Country Club will today formally open its new clubhouse, at Pennsylvania Furnace. Invitations for the event were issued last week. A. G. Morris, of this place, is president of the club.

"TELL TRUTH ABOUT EMERY?" JUST WHAT WE'VE BEEN DOING

"The Republican" Hands a Few Cold Facts to the "Centre Democrat," one of Emery's Democratic Boosters.

HE DESERTED HIS PARTY FOR A DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION

The "Centre Democrat," the fifth wheel of the Emery propaganda, last week printed a full column of flapdoodle under the caption: "Tell The Truth About Mr. Emery." As a Johnny-on-the-spot boomer of Emery the "Centre Democrat," like other Democratic organs, sailed in with criticism and abuse of "The Republican" because this newspaper fearlessly advocates the nomination of Republicans on the Republican ticket.

"The Republican" has vigorously and consistently opposed the nomination of Mr. Emery for Congress on the Republican ticket. It is because we have been telling the truth about Emery that we have been made the object of attack by those Democrats who play poodle dog politics and sniff about the boot of Boss Guffey.

Lacking the courage to stand for some of the features of its Emery defense, the "Centre Democrat" unloaded them upon a mythical person to whom was assigned the Emeryesque title of "Lincoln Republican." "The Republican" is called upon to reply to certain statements. We will quote these statements and accompany them with our reply.

> In his candidacy in 1906, Mr. Emery was supported as a Republican by such eminent Republicans as Chas. Emery Smith, then editor of the Philadelphia Press, on which Charley Dorworth was a reporter at the time, and likely, because of his surroundings, voted for Emery himself.

It is not our policy or desire to indulge in personalities, but the above necessitates so doing in order to make reply. The editor of "The Republican" DID NOT VOTE FOR EMERY and he is proud of it. We then regarded him as we regard him in the present campaign—a deserter from the Republican party and a man unworthy of Republican support.

It is true that the late Chas. Emory Smith supported Emery in that campaign. But it is also true that once Emery had taken the stump and revealed himself as anything but a man fitted to fill the high office of Governor, there was nobody in this great State more disappointed and more thoroughly disgusted than Chas. Emory Smith. What Chas. Emory Smith did in that campaign was his affair. The "surroundings" did not influence us; on the contrary they confirmed our belief that any comparison between Governor Stuart and Emery stood out conspicuously against the latter, both in the matter of party loyalty and qualification for public office. Chas. Emory Smith supported Emery but to the editor of "The Republican" he more than once stated that he had made a profound mistake, that he regretted his action and that he rejoiced that Governor Stuart had been elected.

Try as the "Centre Democrat" may, in its gyrations to wriggle along under the Emery burden, it cannot convince Republicans that Mr. Emery did not desert the Republican party when he had himself nominated for Governor on the Democratic ticket. Very truthfully, although perhaps unintentionally so, the "Centre Democrat" says that had Emery been elected Governor on the Democratic ticket, the Democrats would then have captured control of the offices of Auditor General and State Treasurer. We are convinced that every word of this is gospel truth, for Emery, as a part of the Democratic machine, and making war as he was against the Republican party, would have been going but one step further in turning the State administration in for the support of Democratic candidates for Auditor General and State Treasurer. The "Centre Democrat" should have finished its unintentional confession and admitted that Emery, once Governor, would have turned all Republicans out and put Democrats in. Thats what a Democrat naturally would do and is what Emery would have done.

The "Centre Democrat" also says:

> With amazing recklessness in dealing with facts, known to the average citizen, the "Bellefonte Republican" for some time has been assailing the candidacy of Lewis Emery for Congress, because they claim he is not a Republican; in fact, by inuendo, they intimate that he is actually a Democrat trying to secure a Republican nomination.

The "Centre Democrat" is entirely mistaken. We have not misrepresented Mr. Emery in the slightest degree. We have claimed, and we do claim, that he is not a Republican. We do not intimate at all, we say that he is a Democrat trying to secure a Republican nomination. With apologies to no one, we stand squarely by our conviction that the man who deserts his party, be he a Republican or a Democrat, is not worthy of a place on that party ticket. We respectfully invite the "Centre Democrat" to disclose its honest conviction on this issue. Has it got the courage to speak?

No man can point to a single assertion made in these columns in regard to Emery and truthfully assert that they misrepresented him in the slightest degree. We have carefully refrained from any personal reference to Mr. Emery, notwithstanding the fact that we know the man possibly somewhat better than some of his Democratic boosters. We have taken and we do take issue with his brand of politics and we frankly say that he is not entitled to the Republican nomination for Congress.

Mr. Emery was nominated for Governor on the Democratic ticket. He accepted that nomination. He stood upon the platform adopted by the Democratic State convention. We reported the proceedings of that convention and we know whereof we speak. Charles P. Donnelly, Boss Guffey's chief lieutenant in the Democratic machine in Philadelphia, was then Democratic State Chairman. Mr. Emery co-operated with Donnelly and it was not Mr. Emery's fault that every man in Pennsylvania did not turn in for the Democratic ticket.

If being the Democratic nominee for Governor, standing upon the Democratic platform and bitterly making war upon the Republican party does not constitute all the requirements for being a full-fledged Democrat, pray what does?

We are quite content to let the Republicans of Centre County decide at the primaries on June 4, next.

As between Mr. Emery and Charles E. Patton for the Republican nomination for Congress, the mere fact that the Democrats are clamoring for Emery should, even if there were no other argument, pro or con, convince all Republicans that they owe it to themselves and to their party to repudiate Emery and nominate Patton.

Beware of Democratic salvation for the Republican party!

"Tell the truth about Mr. Emery?"

That's just what "The Republican" is and has been doing and it is the truth that hurts.

See The Point?

The Democrats slated Bill Heinle for Congress because they want to see him elected. Otherwise they wouldn't have slated him. The same Democrats are urging Republicans to nominate Mr. Emery. If they had any honest desire of electing Emery would they be supporting Heinle? Think this over, Mr. Republican, and see for yourself just how it is. The Democrats know that if Charles E. Patton is nominated by the Republicans for Congress Heinle's defeat is certain, whereas, if Emery is made the Republican nominee Heinle will be elected.

Don't vote for Emery and have the Democrats laughing at you.

See the point?

Primaries, Saturday, June 4.

General Grant and Emery.

On Monday last the old comrades of General Grant again honored his memory by covering his grave with flowers. Suppose Grant had deserted the Union Army and going over to the enemy had led one of its great battles, would he have deserved any honors?

Mr. Emery deserted the Republican party in 1906, went over to the Democratic ticket, and, as the Democratic candidate for Governor, waged a terrific battle against the Republican party. When they go to the primaries on Saturday will Republicans honor and reward Mr. Emery, or will they pay tribute to loyal sons of the spirit of Grant by voting for Charles E. Patton for Congress?

ALL IN READINESS FOR SATURDAY'S PRIMARIES

Republicans Urged to Make Good Showing At The Polls.

TO NOMINATE PATTON

His Selection Over Emery for Congress Will be Triumph for Party Loyalty—Complete List of Candidates on all Tickets.

On Saturday, next, between the hours of 2 and 8 o'clock P. M. the primary election for all parties will be held in Centre County. It will be the second time the uniform primary system will have been tried in this county. Nominations will be made by the same primaries at the same time and at the same voting places. A Republican on going to the polling place, will ask for a Republican ballot. A Democrat will ask for a Democratic ballot, and so on. A voter must mark a cross after the name of each person for whom he wishes to vote.

To every Republican voter in Centre County we wish to explain the deep importance of his going to the polls on Saturday. The Democrats want Lewis Emery, Jr., nominated for Congress on the Republican ticket and they are depending on a light Republican turnout to make this possible. A heavy Republican vote at the primaries will make certain the nomination for Congress of Chasles E. Patton, who is a loyal Republican, a man well fitted for the high office and one who never deserted his party to seek some personal honor or reward. The Republicans of this county have it entirely in their hands to say whether or not a premium shall be placed on party disloyalty, for such would be the case were Mr. Emery to be nominated.

For the information of all voters we publish below a complete list of the candidates of all parties whose names are printed on the ballots which will be used at Saturday's primary election. The list follows:

CONGRESS.

Twenty-first District-Cameron, Centre, Clearfield and McKean counties.

LAUGHABLE FAILURE OF PLOT TO DEFAME STUART

Democratic State Chairman Dewalt Gets "Cold Feet."

PUNCTURED SENSATION

Phila. "Record" Publishes "Charges" of Dewalt, Who is Frightened and Denies making Statements—"Record" Printed no Denial.

A glaring instance of character assassins securing enough rope to hang themselves is revealed in the ludicrous fiasco attending an outrageous attempt by Democratic State Chairman Dewalt and the Philadelphia "Record" to blacken the good name of Governor Stuart. The incident is a fair sample of the extremes to which the Democratic bosses will go to injure Republicans and the Republican party. In this case Democratic State Chairman Dewalt slandered Governor Stuart. The Philadelphia "Record," in a sensational article, published Dewalt's slanderous statement. The sensation collapsed within twenty-four hours from the time it was launched. Governor Stuart gave the lie direct to Dewalt. The latter became frightened, got "cold feet," and attempted to crawl out of it by saying he had been misquoted. The "Record," after publishing the Dewalt statement did not accord Governor Stuart the common decency of publishing also the Dewalt denial but made a feeble effort to bolster up the punctured sensation.

Democratic State Chairman Dewalt and the Philadelphia "Record" are a part of the combination that is trying to have Lewis Emery, Jr., nominated for Congress on the Republican ticket in this district. Governor Stuart is the man who defeated Emery, when the latter was the Democratic candidate for Governor four years ago. Hence the Democratic conspiracy to defame Governor Stuart with the hope of helping Emery on the eve of the primaries, on June 4, next.

We take pleasure in publishing the "Record's" first article, Governor Stuart's statement, State Chairman Dewalt's "cold feet" denial and finally the "Record's" shameless attempt to bolster up its punctured sensation.

On Wednesday, May 25, the "Record" under glaring headlines, published the following despatch, dated Allentown, the home of Chairman Dewalt:

Seduously guarded for two years, it was not until today that the secret came out contained in a minority report of State Senator Arthur G. Dewalt to Governor Stuart, as a member of the Capitol Investigation Commission. It was known at the time this committee made its report that Dewalt put in a minority recommendation. Strenuous efforts were made to obtain its contents, because it hit former Governor Pennypacker hardest of all.

Dewalt said at the time that it was not for him to reveal what he recommended, as the resolutions of the Legislature required that he report to the Governor. Governor Stuart refused to reveal its contents, and to all pleas was just as adamantine as Dewalt. Today Mr. Dewalt was asked, as the Democratic State chairman, whether the Rittersville Hospital scandal would be made an issue of the Gubernatorial campaign this coming fall. He replied:

"As yet I do not know. As a citizen, as a lawyer and as State chairman, I do not believe in trying accused officials in the newspapers or on the stump without proper evidence. At Rittersville I do believe there was reprehensible delay, but I do not as yet know whether there was any criminality. I am acquainted with all the members of the Rittersville Hospital Commission, and I am unwilling to accuse them of anything wrong until I have the proper evidence.

"Should the proper evidence be forthcoming, the Rittersville scandal will certainly be made an issue, and a more effective one for the Democrats than was the State Capital scandal. The Capitol scandal as an issue in the Gubernatorial campaign four years ago was not properly handled from the Democratic side. The Democrats should then have pushed into the very fountain-head of the State Government.

"My idea was then that this should be done. It was justified, by the testimony given before the Capitol Investigation Commission, and as a result, in my minority report, I recommended the indictment of Governor Pennypacker. I still think that the recommendation in my report should have been followed. I expressed it as my honest opinion then, and I still believe, Governor Pennypacker to have been more culpable under the law for the State Capitol stealings than ever was Dr. Snyder, who was then the Auditor General. Snyder did not receive any of the misappropriated funds, but he was guilty of misfeasance in office, not malfeasance. In laying himself open to this misfeasance he acted either through ignorance by being fooled or on account of his good nature."

"Pennypacker was more culpable than Dr. Snyder. Pennypacker was learned in the law and was warned by Architect Huston that the law did not give them the authority to proceed th way they did.

"It was on acc ant of my minority report recommending the indictment of Governor Pennypacker that the Capitol Commission had its memorable fight at Beach Haven, lasting through two days and one night, and later we made a shorter but even more bitter fight at Harrisburg.

"My action was inspired neither by personal dislike for Governor Pennypacker, for I like him very much personally, nor by political malice, but I believed it to be just under a cold analysis of the law. In this feature I was upheld by James Scarlet, special attorney for the Commission and he still thinks about it the same as I do. My colleague Aumerman eventually signed my minority report, but the Republican members were so terribly shocked that they would not hear of it. It was not in my place then to make my report public, and if Governor Stuart did not see fit to do so it was not my fault."

As soon as the "Record's" article came to the notice of Governor Stuart, he dictated the following statement:

"My attention has been called to an interview credited to Senator Dewalt and published this morning. If correctly quoted Senator Dewalt is reported to have said that in the minority report of the Capitol Investigation Commission submitted to me he 'recommended the indictment of Governor Peunypacker' and that his colleague, Representative Ammerman, eventually signed his minority report. The interview as published concludes with the following statement by Senator Dewalt: 'It was not in my place then to make my report public, and if Governor Stuart did not see fit to do so it was not my fault.'

"A synopsis of the minority report presented by Senator Dewalt on August 15, 1907, was prepared, and before being handed to the press was submitted to Senator Dewalt and Representative Ammerman for their approval. They both agreed that it was a correct synopsis of their report.

"Neither the majority nor minority reports recommended the indictment of Governor Pennypacker.

"A full synopsis of each report was prepared and given to the press for publication on the same day the reports were transmitted by me to the Senate and House of Representatives on January 5, 1909, and became a part of the public records of the Legislature.

"No recommendation contained in either the majority or minority reports was suppressed in any way, and any intimation or insinuation that any recommendations of Senator Dewalt or any other member of the commission set forth in either the majority or minority reports were omitted from the synopsis by me to the press is absolutely and unqualifiedly false."

Learning that Governor Stuart had upset the sensation, and realizing that the official records at Harrisburg gave the lie to the "Record" charges, Chairman Dewalt quickly got "cold feet," said that he had been misquoted and gave out the following statement:

"What I did say to two reporters who called on me yesterday," said Senator Dewalt, "was that I did not believe that former State Treasurer Mathues had ever received any of the money from those frauds, though he had doubtless been guilty of misfeasance. The same thing, I said, applied to former Auditor General Snyder, and I said that if it applied to those two it applied equally to former Governor Pennypacker.

"That was the stand I took when we were discussing the subject at the meetings of the Capitol Commission, and I have seen no reason since to change my opinion.

"I did not say, however, that I had presented a minority report to Governor Stuart recommending that Governor Pennypacker be included among those against whom criminal prosecutions should be brought. I could not have made such a statement, for it would not have been true.

"This statement came about," said Senator Dewalt, "over the discussion of the non-completion of the Rittersville Insane Hospital, and, in an answer to a question of one of the reporters as to whether that affair would be used in the coming campaign, I then said that the commissioners' failure to furnish the hospital, was reprehensible, but that I did not believe in making use of that fact until it was proven that something was wrong.

"From that we drifted to the State Capitol scandal, and I then expressed the opinion that ex-Governor Pennypacker was more culpable than were Mathues and Snyder, because he was learned in the law, but that the others were not."

Common decency should have prompted the "Record" to publish the Dewalt denial, but it did not. On the contrary the "Record" tried to make it appear that Dewalt had made no denial. Other newspapers, however, published it, thus exposing the "Record's" duplicity in its effort to mislead the public. The following is all the "Record" had to say, published as a dispatch from Allentown:

Doubts hinted at as to its credibility today resulted in efforts to confirm the sensational interview reputed to Democratic State Chairman Dewalt, in which he is alleged to have declared that the indictment of former Governor Pennypacker was recommended by the minority of the Capitol scandal investigating commission.

Dewalt left this morning for New York, and at his home it was said he was not expected home until late tonight.

It was learned, however, that three men claim he told the story of his minority report as a member of the State Capitol Commission to them yesterday afternoon, one an Allentown editor, another a lawyer who is a candidate for State Senator, and the third the correspondent.

"The story as he told it is exactly as it was sent," said the lawyer. "If I were to make an affidavit I would say the story is exactly as Senator Dewalt told it: He said he recommended the indictment of Governor Pennypacker and added that less was to be expected of Auditor General Snyder, who was only a country doctor, than of Governor Pennypacker, who is learned in the law, and that Pennypacker was more culpable than Snyder."

Said the editor:

"The story as published is as Senator Dewalt told it."

If Emery is proud to have such men and agencies as Dewalt and the Philadelphia "Record" behind his candidacy he is welcome to them. We are quite sure they do not strike a responsive chord in the hearts of the Republicans of this district, who are perfectly able to and will select their own candidate for Congress. Boss Guffey and his lieutenant, Dewalt, want Emery nominated—which is one of many good reasons why he is not entitled to the honor of being made the Republican nominee.

TREASURER'S SALE OF UNSEATED LANDS FOR TAXES OF 1908 AND 1909.

Agreeable to the provisions of law relating to the sale of unseated lands for the non-payment of taxes, notice is hereby given that there will be exposed to public sale or outcry, the following tracts or parts of tracts of unseated lands in Centre County, Penn'a, for taxes due and unpaid thereon, at the Court House in the Borough of Bellefonte, on Monday, June 13th, 1910, at 1 o'clock, p. m., and to continue, if necessary, by adjournment from day to day, until all are sold.

What Does Whatever Mean?

Isn't it about time we set about revising the English language? Not in the meager, paltry way of the simplified spellers, but in the broader methods of changing the sense and meaning that common words since their creation have been assumed to bear? Take the old-fashioned word "whatever." It has universally been held where the English language was spoken as a compound relative, embracing everything in sight and exempting nothing. In that natural and universal sense the language of the proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States authorizing the Federal Government to impose a tax upon incomes "from whatever source derived" was held by Gov. Hughes and other opponents of the measure to mean what it seemed in the common acceptation of the word to mean. But Senator Root, who is an able lawyer and an expert juggler with the king's English, tells us that in this case it means nothing of the sort. It involves exceptions, not specified, but just as many as the Supreme Court of the United States may feel warranted in placing upon it.

Wouldn't it be the wiser and more prudent plan, before giving our assent as a state to this proposition, to find out exactly what the word "whatever" means in our twentieth century vocabulary? Otherwise we may find ourselves imbogged in a swamp from which we can not extricate ourselves. If the words upon which we have been wont to depend as the sure landmarks to safety fail us, if they have completely changed their meaning since we knew them first, what guidance have we? These are all our reliance. Take away the spelling book and the dictionary and the whole painfully wrought fabric of civilization crumbles beneath our feet and leaves us sweeping helplessly into Alpine abyss. If "whatever" does not mean "whatever" but simply just what the Supreme Court pleases, does anything mean anything any longer?

These are questions that the members of the State Legislature would do well to ask themselves before they vote to approve the proposed constitutional amendment. From the Brooklyn Times.

The Rubber Farm Delusion.

A favorite way to interest the city man in farming is to sell him shares in Mexican rubber or banana farm. We all know that rubber grows in Mexico and that the world's supply is short. It is easy to say that 500 men can co-operate, put their money together and grow rubber as a company or a colony. There is nothing easy about it except the theory, and the men who give up the money I have for some years publicly challenged the directors of any so-called co-operative stock company, organized [illegible] some farm product, to show that promises to stockholders had been realized. I have yet to have reports from one that has made good. I think it has been demonstrated that the city man has a very poor chance in buying stock in

Dr. Baff on The Sex.

A psychologist of Worcester, Mass., Dr. Max Baff, has just emerged from comparative obscurity by launching a philippic at the fair sex. There is nothing novel in his diatribe. "Woman," he says, "loves to wear feathers; she pierces her ears; she wears here hair long; she paints her face. Therefore she makes no advance in civilization. She has remained stationary, if she has not actually retrograded. Hence her lack of discernment and discrimination. She thinks so much about her personal adornment that she is scarcely to be accounted a rational being. Her mind, enfeebled by the constant study and contemplation of fashion, is unable to master the serious problems of life. She is an easy victim of the faddist, prone to accept as true without reflection the suggestions of others." To the failure of women to develop and exercise their mental faculties Dr. Baff attributes the spread of the suffrage movement. They should cut their hair as men do and dress with reasonable simplicity and naturalness. Then, in his judgment, they will become useful and intelligent members of society, able to think straight, to rise above the level of the child or the savage and develop powers of mental concentration.

This is a very bitter attack upon the fair sex, but probably the women will be able to survive it. Of course, if all men were as critical and fastidious and exacting as Dr. Max Baff, the gentle sex would soon fall into a state of innocuous desuetude. But the average man is pretty well satisfied with woman as she lives and moves and has her joyous being in these degenerate days. He doesn't want her to cut her hair as men do, nor is there any widespread demand that she should cease to make herself attractive by tasteful dressing. It is the "eternal feminine" in woman which men admire and for which they will clamor long after the Worcester psychologist is dead and forgotten. The gentle sex, we imagine, will regard Dr. Baff's declarations as the utterances of an ignorant and misguided creature—and will have only derision for his system of psychology. The intellect of man may be more powerful than that of woman when it brought to bear upon problems of government and of science. But when man attempts to advise a woman how to cut her hair, how to walk and how to fashion her growns, he is out of his element. There is no system of psychology which can solve these mysteries half as well as a woman's intuition. We look for no change in woman's attire or any shortening of her tresses. We do expect, however, that Dr. Max Baff will return speedily to the obscurity from which he emerged long enough to give counsels of monumental folly to the daughters of Eve.—From the Baltimore Sun.

Biggest of Cabbages.

There was exhibited in the State Legislature Wednesday by Representative H. D. Wilson of Tangipahoa Parish, a mammoth cabbage, which with its crate weighed 40 pounds. This immense vegetable was the product of a truck farm at Roseland, in Tangipahoa Parish, belonging to Mr. S. E. Hostetter, and, according to Mr. Wilson, it was grown entirely by means of irrigation, not having had the benefit of a drop of rain.

A big cabbage, however much a curiosity in itself, becomes of more importance accompanied by a statement that the grower has shipped thirty carloads of such cabbages from his farm this season. It all goes to show that Louisiana has something other to depend upon than cotton, corn and sugar, and that Tangipahoa Parrish and the neighboring country is an ideal truck farming section.

There is a world of meaning in the steady growth of truck farming in this and the neighboring states. It means the possibility of profitable crop diversification and the certainty that not even the ravages of the boll weevil can seriously impair the agricultural prosperity of this section. Good early vegetables find a ready market all over the more northerly portions of the United States where garden truck can not be raised during the winter and spring.

When one considers the amount of cabbages, strawberries and other garden truck that the parish of Tangipahoa and the neighboring sections in this state and Mississippi have shipped this season one ceases to wonder that this favored section lays claim to be considered the garden spot of the South. When crop diversification is extended throughout the South, as it ought to be, this part of the country will rival the most productive as well as the most prosperous sections not only of the United States, but of the world, and our people will cease to feel that utter dependence upon a single crop, which has held them back for so many years. From the New Orleans Picayune.

Scared Into Sound Health.

Mr. B. F. Kelley Springfield, Ill., writes: "A year ago I began to be troubled with my kidneys and bladder, which grew worse until I became alarmed at my condition. I suffered also with dull heavy headaches and the action of my bladder was annoying and painful. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them a few weeks the headaches left me, the action of my bladder was again normal, and I was free of all distress." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Sea Rules of the Road.

On the sea it is even more important than on land that there should be well defined rules of the road. While there are "ocean lanes," vessels do not move along well marked lines, like railway trains. They cross and recross each other's tracks. Moreover, there is no air brake which can halt an ocean steamer within a few yards. Rules of the road at sea are based upon common sense and experience. In general, when two vessels under steam are meeting each other end on they follow the same rules as with us with vehicles—that is, each steers to the starboard or right. One short blast from the ship's whistle means that she is taking the starboard course, two blasts mean that she is taking her course to port, three that she is going full speed astern. Should there be risk of collision between a steam vessel and a sailing vessel it is the duty of the steam vessel as the more manageable to keep out of the way of the other. For the same reason a sailing ship which is running free is required to keep out of the way of one which is running close hauled.—Travel.

Testing an Explosive.

One of the most dangerous of explosives is iodide of nitrogen, a black powder which the slightest touch will often cause to explode when dry with great violence. In experiments to determine the cause of its extreme explosiveness some damp iodide of nitrogen was rubbed on the strings of a bass viol. It is known that the strings of such an instrument will vibrate when those of a similar instrument having an equal tension are played upon. In this case, after the explosive had become thoroughly dry upon the strings, another bass viol was brought near and the strings sounded. At a certain note the iodide of nitrogen on the prepared instrument exploded. It was found that the explosion occurred only when a rate of vibration of sixty a second was communicated to the prepared strings. Vibration of the G string caused an explosion, while that of the E string had no effect.

Heredity.

Tommy was a fairly good pupil except in arithmetic. The teacher noticed with his home studies that when sums were set he always brought in answers much in excess of the correct amount. As this was unfailing he called the boy to him and said:

"Tommy, how is it that your sums are always wrong and the totals always too large?"

"Dunno, teacher."

"Does any one assist you with your arithmetic at home? Now, be truthful!"

"Yes, sir, father."

"What does your father do for a living?"

"He's a waiter, sir."

"Ah," said the teacher, "that accounts for it. Go back and sit down."

Finnish Respect For the Law.

In Finland there is a deep and prevailing respect for law.

"Can I have a shot at an elk?" asked a stranger of a peasant who lived on the fringe of a forest well stocked with this noble game.

"No, sir. It's against the law."

"What is the penalty?"

"Two hundred Finnish marks."

"All right. Will you come along with me if I agree to pay the fine?"

"No, I won't. It's against the law, and I'm not going to break it!"—"Russian Characteristics."

Distant Neptune.

The period of man's whole history is not sufficient for an express train to traverse half the distance to Neptune from the earth. Thought wearies and falls in seeking to grasp such distances. It can scarcely comprehend 1,000,000 miles, and here are thousands of them. When we stand on that the outermost of the planets, the very last sentinel of the outposts of the King, the very sun grows dim and small in the distance.

What He Had Done.

"I'd be ashamed to beg if I was a big, healthy looking man like you," said the sarcastic woman. "You ought to look for a job of some kind. Have you done anything at all during the past year?"

HOORAY, FISHIN', HOORAY!

Cum, Billy, dig some fishin' bait.
Git down the fishin' pole.
I seen some big fat suckers
Down at the swimmin' hole.

There's catties over at the dam
An' sunnies in the crick;
There's eels down at the wagon bridge
That's awful long an' slick.

Yep, git a lot of them big grubs
What's near the apple tree.
They're jist the stuff fur them white chubs.
We'll ketch a lot, you'll see.

An' tell your mam we're goin' soon.
We want some hard b'iled eggs,
Some bread an' pie an' cake an' cheese
An' tender chicken legs.

An' don't forgit the bottle;
It's on that upper sheif.
It ain't no good fur youngsters;
I want it all myself.

There's ague lurkin' in the swamp.
I'll take a drink right now.
We'll start to fishin' over there
Beside that ole mud scow.

Hooray! Oh, won't we ketch the fish?
Yep, make them stringers long
An' use the toughest twine you got.
Them eels is awful strong.

By golly, what a whopper bite!
There's ague here, I fear.
I ketched him. Ain't he big and white?
Jist pass the bottle here.

PURE WATER FOR POULTRY.

When you drew up the old oaken bucket that hung in grandpap's well and smacked your lips and said, "Golly, that's good!" you weren't thinking of microbes, were you?

"Not much! No microbes in that pure crystal water." But, oh, you death dealing microbes! The doctors now have everything wiggling with you, and when there's an epidemic they don rubber boots and rubber at the water supply or hold up the milk wagon, for milk, you know (naturally), is muchly water.

But, oh, you microbe sleuth! Do you known a hen's egg is 650 parts water?

When that epidemic gets loose do you ever test eggs from Bughouse row, where fowls are forced to drink drainage from closets, hogpens, oozy manure piles or where flocks drink from open water vessels where litter and excrement soak, rot and breed microbes deadly to hen and men. And, you myriad egg eaters and lovers of meat, can you save your health by a pure food act and boiling and filtering water when 650 parts of an egg and the juices of that fat hen may wiggle with germs?

No hen can lay a pure, finely flavored, good keeping, healthy egg nor can flesh be pure and healthy when the drink is microbe mixture.

Nor can any flock do its best and be kept healthy when forced to soak food for grinding in foul smelling, death dealing liquid.

Typhoid, smallpox and tuberculosis germs have been found in eggs, and epidemics among hens and men may often be traced to the water supply of fowls.

Let those microbe sleuths get busy in the chicken coops and forbid such reprehensible treatment of hens and roosters. Do you love a pure, fresh, cold drink? Well, so do Biddy and old Fan and Rover.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Maine has the credit of raising the first "crowless" roosters. Alton, Ill., now comes to the front with "wingless" fowls. It remains for some one now to produce a hen without a cackle and scratch machine, and the three bred together will produce a ne plus ultra to please even the worst hen hater.

Two negroes with twenty-seven headless hens was the haul of the Chester (Pa.) police one day recently. The thieves confessed that they had averaged that many hens a night ever since poultry had advanced.

Many, lured by the high price of winter eggs, will decide to go into the poultry business without considering the high price of everything else. Besides high priced grains, there must be brains, pains and laying strains to get good gains.

Spring henhouse cleaning should precede that event where man gets nervous prostration from carpet beating, cook stove wrestling and jaw wrangling. The plan that pays best is to keep things clean to date.

A little sprinkle of grit is sufficient for chicks at first. If given the chance they will fill up with it and die.

A neighbor who persists in running an incubator with a lamp that leaks or continually smokes or runs his hatcher or brooder in a stable amid combustible material, where some fowl or animal may interfere with it, puts you in the danger zone and should be reported to the police.

Ducklings should have fresh water often, as their feeding and drinking at one time mix feed and water and make water foul. Waterfowl naturally love to liquidate their bills, whether you do or not.

You need not bother to wean your goslings from their old hen mother. They always precede her on parade and only honk for her when in need of heat. They give her the cold shoulder early.

State inspectors condemned 13,000 pounds of cold storage poultry found in a Seattle refrigerating plant. It was sent to a "fertilizer" factory.

It is wise to remember when those turkeys hatch that they are semiwild. Every year some farmers report failure. They do not change stock nor methods. They kill them every year with the same old dope—sloppy cornmeal and red pepper. It's like a man tearing his pants on the same nail every time he enters the barn.

Bismarck on Women.

Berlin suffragists bring out Bismarck as a champion and are sending a leaflet of hitherto unpublished conversation which Bismark had with a beautiful young woman just before he retired to private life. "Mark my words," said Bismarck, "the day will come when women will be called to co-operate in politics. We men are all clumsy. We Germans especially are bears. So are the diplomats. Moreover, if women were in politics, fewer secrets would become public; a clever feminine mouth can keep silent. Yet in the midst of innocent conversation, it understands how to extract many a secret which it keeps from us men. Woman chatters so delightfully about the gravest topics that one-when one is an old donkey-fails to notice one has said more than one wished. In everything that has to do with slyness woman is our superior. What I am I have become through my wife. I respect every woman who elevates us men, teaches us religion and morality, preserves our ideas and scatters roses along the path of our earthly life. I have long wished for the co-op eration of women in politics, but we are not yet advanced enough. Women should not encroach upon men, but should influence and soften them and lead them to good works. If Germany's men become weak Germany's women will become strong." From the New York Press.

Looking For Small Bills.

As a result of a sudden and unexplained demand throughout the country for paper money of denominations below $10, the Treasury Department ,at Washington, has appealed to the National banks holding silver certificates of the denomination of $10 and over to send part of them to the Treasury so that they may be exchanged for those of smaller denomination.

As a preliminary step a circular note has been addressed to the banks asking for data as to the silver certificates of the denomination of $10 and over, held by them on June 2, and whether it would be agreeable to make the exchange proposed. Silver certificates over the denomination of $10 issued by the Government include those for $20, $50, $100, $500 and $1000.

Several years ago when there was a scarcity of $5 notes the Department sought to increase their issue by the same method as that now in view though the experiment was with another class at issue. It met with indifferent success, however, as only a limited proportion of the banks seconded the Government's efforts.

No Jackpot in Her Kitchen.

"Among the gambling stories that the late Fat Sheedy used to tell in his art shop," said a New York reporter, "was one about a jackpot.

"A beautiful young bride the story ran, entered a corner grocery one morning and said:

" 'Have you got any jackpots, Mr. Sands?'

"No, ma'am,' Sands answered, and he hid a smile behind his hand. 'I've got teapots and coffee pots, but jackpots I don't keep in stock'

" 'Oh, dear!' said the bride. A frown wrinkled her smooth and beautiful brow. 'I'm so sorry! You see, Mr. Sands, my husband's mother used to cook for him and nearly every night he talks in his sleep about a jackpot. So I thought I'd get one, for, since he mentions it so often, he must be used to it. Could you tell me, Mr. Sands, what they cook in jackpots?

" 'Greens, ma'am,' was the quick answer."

Chairman Keller's Sound Advice.

In a letter to the members of the Republican Vigilance Committee in the County, Chairman Harry Keller says:

"Since Captain Barclay's retirement from the Congressional race, the fight for Congress lies between Charles E. Patton and Lewis Emery, Jr. Mr. Patton has always been a Republican, while Mr. Emery saw fit to leave the party four years ago and accept the Democratic nomination for Governor. We need a Republican whose standing cannot be questioned to uphold the principles of the party at Washington and to aid in the modern methods of government outlined by Roosevelt and Taft. Mr. Patton is such a man, and under the present system of voting at the primary elections the vote of this county will probably determine who will be our candidate for Congress."

This is sound advice. Let Centre county Republicans stand loyally in favor of a loyal Republican and not only clinch the victory for November but serve notice on Lewis Emery, Jr., that by his desertion in 1906 he forfeited all claim on the Republican party.

Mr. Womelsdorff's Strength.

From the reports now coming in from various parts of the district, it looks as though Hon. P. E. Womelsdorff will be made the Republican candidate for State Senator in the 34th Senatorial District, at the primaries on Saturday, June 4, 1910.

Known to hosts of people throughout the counties of Clearfield and Centre, from the highest to the lowest, as a man; active, honest and square in all of his dealings; ready at any time to give any man a helping hand if it is within his power, and having a reputation for political independence and integrity that is an extremely valuable asset to any candidate for public office in these uneasy times in our public affairs, it is no wonder that the fair, quiet and non aggressive canvass conducted by him throughout his district is producing such apparently favorable results, especially in Clearfield county, where the people seem to be willing to recognize the claim of Centre to this place on the ticket, notwithstanding the sterling qualities and reputable standing of their own candidates for the same office. Philipsburg Journal.

Mr. Alexander's Record.

"For six years Joseph Alexander, the union veteran of Madera, Bigler township, represented Clearfield County in the General Assembly at Harrisburg. The interests of the people have always been dear to the heart of this sturdy son of old Clearfield County. This week we take pleasure in announcing his candidacy for his party's nomination for the State Senate, believing that Mr. Alexander possesses every qualification for the office. Four years ago he was a candidate for the same honor but under the conferee system Quigley of Centre County was nominated by the withdrawal of Mr. Alexander. Urged by his host of friends throughout the district, Mr. Alexander has decided to present his claims before the Republicans at the June Primary, and although he will not have the opportunity of seeing the voters face to face, his friends feel that his splendid record in war and peace should not require him to make a personal canvass. Curwensville has a peculiar interest in Joseph Alexander, as it was from this place that he went forth as a volunteer soldier in the late Col. John Irvin's regiment at the outbreak of the rebellion."—Curwensville Mountaineer.

Flight of Carrier Pigeons.

One day last week Express Agent Harry Taylor received a basket, shipped by A. F. Rexroth, of Harrisburg, and containing ten carrier pigeons. Accompanying the basket was a letter addressed to Mr. Taylor to liberate the pigeons not later than 12.30 o'clock that afternoon. The basket was opened and the pigeons at once took a high position in the air, circling about Bellefonte for probably five minutes and then finally getting their bearings, started on a straight line toward Harrisburg. It is Mr. Rexroth's intention to enter his pigeons in a race from Midland, Ontario, on June 18. Quite a crowd gathered at the Pennsylvania Railroad station and watched the pigeons until they were out of sight.

The Parrot's Language.

Circumstantial evidence has contributed to the solution of many vexing questions that for a time seemed absolutely inexplicable in the absence of direct evidence. As an instance of where it performed its office with entirely satisfactory results, the Washington Herald tells of an interesting incident that occurred at Ellis Island a few days ago.

It seems that when Mrs. Filipa Cartorio, returning from a visit to Italy, stepped from an Italian steamer and was desirous of proceeding without delay to a Pennsylvania town in which, according to the papers she had lived for twenty-four years, she was subjected to the usual examination by an immigrant inspector.

"Do you speak English?" he asked. "No signor," she replied, I no speka da Eengleesh." This aroused the suspicion of the inspector, who said to her: "That is rather strange. You claim to have lived in this country for twenty-four years, and yet you can speak no English. We must look into your case." Thereupon he began making out a special inquiry card, requiring the detention of Mrs. Cartorio until her case was fully investigated, and while engaged in this task was unexpectedly startled by a harsh voice exclaiming: "Come off, you lobster! That's enough for you."

Mrs. Cartorio was visibly embarrassed, and in her soft Italian tongue hastily explained to the inspector that it was her parrot and not herself doing the talking. To prove the truth of her statement, she drew aside the cover from the cage she carried in her hands and disclosed a large green parrot. The bird cocked his head and, blinking its eyes at the inspector, shrieked, "Cut it out now, and go to hell."

The inspector was immediately convinced that the woman's story to the effect she had lived in this country for the length of time she had stated was true. "Madam" he said, "please accept my humble apologies. You have been fully identified as a resident of this country. The English that your parrot speaks is pure American."

Oberving a talking parrot, as a parrot, as a rule, is a nuisance, but that there are exceptions to all rules, the Herald says the Ellis Island incident clearly establishes in the case of Mrs. Cartorio the choice vocabulary of her "polly" served her a good turn at the right time.—From the Houston (Texas.) Post.

Book to Score Ball Game.

Learn how to score a baseball game accurately and scientifically if you want to increase your knowledge and enjoyment of the national game.

George Graham, sporting editor of The North American, has lately prepared a complete scoring system, which tells in detail how every play should be recorded, giving illustrations making clear the various symbols, and is arranged so simply and concisely as to come within the understanding of all.

Ten cents and coupon which appears every Sunday in The North American will bring a copy of this valuable book which includes also blanks enough to score the season's games.

The Philadelphia National League club has adopted Mr. Graham's system as official, and uses it daily in the scorecard sold on the grounds. It has the indorsement of Charles Carpenter, president of the Tristate Leagu , and has been praised all over the country as the most complete exposition of the science of scoring since Harry Wright invented the first system, three decades ago.

Get a copy of next Sunday's North American, and send along the coupon and 10 cents. The North American pays the postage.

Recent Deaths.

MRS MARY M. BAKER.

Mrs. Mary M. Baker, a highly esteemed and well known lady, died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Robert Malone, in Snow Shoe on Tuesday morning, last, from infirmities incident to old age. She was the widow of John R. Baker, who preceded her to the grave 26 years ago. Practically all her life was spent in Howard. Last fall she went to the home of her brother, Irvin Cheesman, in Altoona, and this spring came to Snow Shoe. She was aged about 75 years. The deceased was a member of the Methodist church of Howard and was a kind Christian woman who had a host of friends in that community. She is survived by two brothers, John Cheesman, of the state of Indiana; Irvin Cheesman, of Altoona, and one sister Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Milesburg. The remains were taken to Howard Wednesday forenoon and services held in the Disciple church. Interment was made in the Howard cemetery.

MISS ALICE MUSSER.

Miss Alice Musser died on Friday, May 27, at her late home at Warriors Mark, after an illness of several years. Deceased was a life-long member of the Lutheran church and was a splendid woman. Surviving are her mother and one brother. Interment was made at Warriors Mark on Sunday.

THE WORLD TONGUE.

Hardly a Land In Which English Is Not Now Heard.

The traveler of today, unless he is going to Tibet or Tierra del Fuego, can get along very well with a knowledge of the English language. The farther he goes the more he is surprised at finding that English is really "the" world tongue. In France and Spain and Italy the American traveler is craftily "spotted." He is approached on the streets by those who would for a consideration make him feel quite at home. One of his chief worries is to escape the pests who can speak English and who wish to apprise him of the fact. They may not necessarily desire to mulct him. Sometimes they are seeking merely to "show off." At any rate, they classify distinctly as bores. One may go to Smyrna or Constantinople or Beirut and still find the streets plentifully full of English speaking nuisances. At Jerusalem he will be fairly flooded with English. He may penetrate even to Damascus, and he will find at least a befezzed hall porter who can converse glibly with him and any number of fluently willing dragomans. He may go to Cairo, and in the shadow of the pyramids he will find blue gowned Bedouins speaking more than passable English. He may go hundreds of miles up the Nile and may be steered through the locks of the first cataract by frizzly haired Nubian boatmen who make insistent demands for backsheesh in very intelligible terms. He may wander donkey back to the tombs of the kings in the Sahara desert and be painfully disillusioned by a few words of concise information or explanation by some barefooted, dusky tent dweller.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

METEORIC DUST.

Bombards the Earth In an Invisible, Never Ending Shower.

Meteoric dust particles are infinitely finer than grains of sand. They have an interesting origin. Meteors or shooting stars have been bombarding the world from the beginning at a rate estimated at many thousands an hour, of which, however, an average of only five or six are visible to the naked eye in that time.

Owing to our protecting envelope of air few of these missiles reach us. In weight meteors vary from a few ounces to many pounds. Occasionally one is of sufficient dimensions to survive the passage of eighty to a hundred miles through an atmosphere increasing in density as the earth is approached.

The speed at which they enter the atmosphere, calculated at not less than thirty-five miles a second, generates such intense heat by friction that the iron, of which the meteor principally consists, is immediately reduced to an incandescent vapor, which is the luminous train so frequently seen in the heavens on a clear night. The vapor rapidly cools and condenses in the form of these minute particles, which assume the spherical form, as does shot during its fall from the top of the tower.

Finally the little spheres are scattered by the winds and currents in the upper air and gradually descend in their millions as an invisible, never ending shower. The perfect condition in which these meteors are found is due to the presence of certain non-corrosive elements found by analysis to be present in the metal of meteors which have come to earth.—Chicago Tribune.

A Clever French Captive.

A person who was supposed to be the French General Mouton, count de Lobau, was once captured by an English vessel, but after a time the captain discovered that his prisoner was the Count de Montrond. "Why did you deceive me?" he demanded angrily of the count. "I did not deceive you," replied Montrond; "not at all. You thought I was General Mouton. You told me so. You have a fifty gun frigate. Was it for me, who have only a pocket pistol, to contradict you?"

The captain did not forgive Montrond and took every opportunity to treat him rudely. One evening at dinner some one proposed the health of the French. As Moutrond rose to acknowledge it the captain cried: "They are all cowards! I make no exceptions!" When Montrond's turn came he gave this sentiment, "The English—they are all gentlemen, but I make exceptions."

Bay Rum.

Bay rum is manufactured from the dried leaves of Pimento acris. Bay rum is procured by distillation, and this in a very simple manner. The leaves are picked from the trees and then dried. In this state they are placed in the retort, which is then filled with water, and the process of distillation is carried on. The vapor is then condensed in the usual way and forms what is known as "bay oil," a very small quantity of which is required for each puncheon of rum.

Election Officers Draw Lots.

It was necessary to draw lots to decide the winners for judge and majority inspector of the Unionville election board, a tie vote having been polled for both positions at the February election. J. M. Peters and John P. Harris, Jr., were tied for judge of election, and Peters won when lots were drawn to settle the matter. Joseph Brugger and Boyd Stere were tied for majority inspector. On drawing lots, Brugger won.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed conditions mucous surfaces.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FOR CONGRESS.

You are authorized to announce my name as a candidate for Congress, from the 21 Congressional District composed of the Counties of Clearfield, McKean, Centre and Cameron, subject to the Rules of the Republican Party. Primary Election, June 4, 1909.

Yours truly,
CHAS. E. PATTON
Curwensville,
Clearfield County.

FOR CONGRESS.

To The Editor: I hereby announce myself a candidate for Congress in the 21st Pennsylvania district, subject to the decision of the Republican voters at the primaries to be held June 4 1910. I make this announcement and enter the contest in compliance with the earnest requests of many prominent members of the party in the district and also because I believe that in Congress, if elected, I would be in a position to effectively advocate those principles and measures of good government, which now more than ever, should be embodied in Federal legislation. I believe in clean policies and progressive Roosevelt policies. And to the end that I may serve their best interests, I ask the support of the Republicans of this district.

LEWIS EMERY, JR.

The annual Ministerial, Sunday School and K. L. of C. E. convention, which concluded its sessions in the United Evangelical church here last Thursday evening, was one of the most interesting and successful meetings ever held in Howard. It was everybody's convention and all who participated showed the most careful preparation of the parts assigned them. Out of the 107 delegates assigned to the convention 94 were in attendance and were hospitably entertained by our citizens. One of the features of the convention was the address of William H. Berry on Wednesday evening. Mr. Berry's subject was "Good Citizenship" and his remarks were very timely and highly appreciated by all present. Just before the close of the convention Thursday evening Rev. W. W. Rhoads asked permission to make a few remarks and then presented the presiding elder, Rev. J. C. Reeser, with a handsome quartered-oak library table, as a gift from those at the convention. This is Rev. Reeser's eighth year as presiding elder and according to the rules of the church he must be retired at the next annual conference. He was very much surprised and received the table in the same spirit in which it was given. The committee in charge of the arrangements were Revs. J. C. Reeser, W. W. Rhoads and J. F. Hower and the success of the convention was largely due to their unfailing energy.

Mrs. Wm. Roberts, of Pitcairn, is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

R. M. Neff, of Tyrone, was a caller in town last week.

Miss Nettie Swartz and Miss Carrie Holter were to Bellefonte on a shopping tour on Wednesday.

Mrs. S. H. Bennison and Harry McDowell were business visitors to Bellefonte on Thursday, the former looking after the estate of her husband and the latter that of John Holmes, of which he has been appointed administrator.

The secretaries of the Bellefonte and Lock Haven Y. M. C. A's. were in Howard last week looking after the arrangements for the boys' camp which will be located here about June 20.

Philip Ertel was a visitor at the county seat on Saturday.

Mrs. O. W. McEntire and daughter, Josie, were in Bellefonte on Saturday.

Miss Maude Longee returned to Williamsburg on Saturday after a pleasant visit with her mother.

Clifford Holter came down from Bellwood on Saturday to spend a few days with his parents.

Rev. W. W. Rhoads and daughter Miss Ida departed Sunday night for Reading where they made the annual decoration on the grave of the wife and father, a vow that the reverend has dutifully kept since the death of his beloved wife.

In view of the fact of that there were a number of ministers in town last week, the chicken thieves got busy and consequently there was a shortage on several tables.

Joseph McMonigal, conductor on the Ridgway and Clearfield local freight, with headquarters at Ridgway, made a brief visit at the home of his wife's sister, Mrs. S. F. Kline, on Sunday.

Howard Brickley, of Lock Haven, spent a few days with relatives in town.

Prof. Shuman Williams, of Pleasant Gap, was a visitor at the home of his parents on Sunday.

O. M. Lucas, of Altoona, was down to spend Memorial day with his mother and sisters.

C. V. Woodward, of Philadelphia, was at home several days for a brief vacation.

Miss Nellie Holter came down from State College on Saturday to spend a few days with her parents.

Dr. W. J. Kurtz is entertaining his brother from Williamsport.

The comet gazers had opportunity for several good views of the long-tailed star last week.

Edward Shope has had his home on East Main street treated to a handsome coat of new paint.

The several Sunday schools of town are making preparations for the annual children's day services.

Frank Butler is laying substantial brick walks in front of his properties on Walnut street.

Lot Neff has been quite ill the past few days, his illness being difficult ofd iognosis. A short time ago he embalmed a man who had died from blood poison, and at the time had a cut on his finger. It was thought that blood poison might be developing, but he is somewhat improved at the time of writing.

Mrs. Carpenter Miller continues to improve slowly and has been able to sit up most of the time for the past few days.

Memorial day services in Howard were more largely attended this year than for some years past. On Sunday there was a good turnout at the Christian chapel where Rev. W. H. Patterson delivered the annual memorial sermon, which was somewhat in the nature of a lecture, and was highly pleasing to the veterans. The reverend explained many things concerning the war that are not generally understood by the American people. Monday forenoon the members of Grove Brothers Post went to Jacksonville where they decorated the graves of the comrades there. The P. O. S. of A. and band went to Beech Creek and Eagleville and assisted in the services. At two o'clock the parade formed at the diamond in Howard and was made up as follows: The Howard Cornet band, Grove Brothers Post, Beech Creek P. O. S. of A. Beech Creek Red Men, I. O. O. F. of Howard and the Howard camp P. O. S. of A. It was one of the largest parades that ever marched in town and the line, of march covered all the principal streets. The annual memorial address was delivered by Rev. George F. Boggs, a former pastor of the Methodist church. and was filled with patriotic inspiration. The services were more largely attended than for some years and the veterans were very much pleased on this account. Another pleasing feature to the Post was the fact that the services were not marred by any ball games, festivals or anything that had a tendency to detract from the purposes of the day set aside for them.

The Methodist church is being handsomely repapered this week and new carpets will also be laid.

Miss Jane Coble, of Williamsport, is a guest at the home of ex-Sheriff and Mrs. Robert Cooke.

John Weber is spending a few days in Philadelphia this week on bnsiness.

Frank Smith, wife and son, Francis, attended memorial services at Lock Haven on Monday.

J. E. Foresman and family were guests of his sister, Mrs. Laura Bechdel, on Monday.

Miss Olive Clark has returned home after a delightful visit with friends at Williamsport.

The parade here on Memorial Day was one of the finest witnessed in this section in many years. Participating were the Baptist and Christian Sunday schools, Odd Fellows, P. O. S. of A., G. A. R. Post and the Eagleville band. The procession moved to the Baptist cemetery, where the opening services were held and the graves decorated, thence to the Disciple cemetery, where they were concluded. All then adjourned to the Disciple church, where A. A. Dale, of Bellefonte, delivered the memorial address. Several splendid musical numbers were rendered. Miss Bitner, of Beech Creek, gave a splendid recitation and the services were concluded by the singing of "America." All in all, it was a most successful day and reflected the greatest credit on those having the plans in charge.

Mt. Eagle.

Mr. and Mrs. John Braumbaugh, of Altoona, are spending the week with Mrs. Braumbaugh's father, J. R. Pheasant. They were accompanied by Charles Rich, also of Altoona.

Robert Leech and Rober Snyder are back from the West.

A. B. Tanyer, of State College, was here on Monday.

Miss Clair Bovert, of Spruce Creek, is visiting friends here.

William W. Kellar, who holds a clerical position in the Pittsburg postoffice, is here with his family for a brief outing.

O. P. Bloom, wife and family visited relatives at McAlavey's Fort during the early part of the week.

Bair Miller and family came down from Holidaysburg to spend Memorial Day.

Mrs. T. D. Gray, of Bloomsburg, with her two interesting little children, visited relatives here in the early part of the week.

Our carriage-maker, H. M. Krebs, has been laid up for some time with a bealed jaw, that has caused him some sleepless nights.

The fishing party returned home on Friday, last, after three days of angling in Stone Creek. They brought with them 460 of the spreckled beauties and some large eels. Dr. J. B. Krebs was the champion, with 102 to his credit.

B. F. Davis, our popular lumberman, spent last week in Altoona making in Altoona making lumber sales.

Eric Kline has been quite ill with a billious attack, but he is somewhat better at this writing.

H. N. Walker went to York State on Tuesday in quest of a fat job that he has his eye on and could not afford to let pass by.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carter and Mr. and Mrs. John Lose, of Centre Hall, were visitors at the W. H. Bloom home last week.

Edward Elder, after a ten days stay at the Jefferson Hospital, at Philadelphia, returned home on Saturday having received but little or no encouragment for his complete recovery.

Overseer of the Poor Frank Miller spent Saturday at the county seat on business relating to his office. Indications are that we will have more paupers very soon.

Ed. Woomer made a business trip through the western part of the State last week and found sales for milling stuff rather dull.

Last Thursday George Potter was 57 years old. He had frequently boasted that he could not be fooled, but he was. He was decoyed to State College in the morning and on his return home about noon found the house filled with kind folks to remind him of his natal day. Refreshments were served, full and plenty, by Mrs. Potter and her assistants. Many presents were brought and everybody had a most delightful time.

On Sunday evening the Lutheran church presented a beautiful scene. The pulpit was a bank of flowers and roses, decorated with pretty flags and bunting. Rev. J. S. Shultz preached the memorial sermon, which was full of patriotism and spiritual thought for those who follow after the boys who wore the blue.

Memorial Day has come and gone. Large crowds assembled at the cemeteries to do honor to our dead. Our town was in holiday attire, most places being decorated with flags and bunting. The streets and homes presented an attractive appearance. The parade formed at the I. O. O. F. hall and the I. O. O. F. and the I. of O. A. in their beautiful costumes, and the school children and their drum corps were in line to march to the cemeteries and strew flowers on the graves. A quartet of young men, with Miss Maggie Wright presiding at the organ, furnished splendid music. Rev. S. C. Pittinger was the orator of the day and he paid a glowing tribute to the old veterans whose ranks are fast thinning out, and gave a lesson on patriotism to the younger generation. He was followed by Rev. J. S. Shultz, spoke briefly with a few appropriate remarks. The next place visited was Pine Hall cemetery, where at 5.30 P. M., Beaver Camp Sons of Veterans, No. 70, in command of George Graham, assisted in performing the ritualistic work as well as firing a salute of three volleys. Professor Alva Agee, of State College, was the orator and he made a most impressive address. The State College band and the Pine Hall choir furnished excellent music for the occasion. It was a beautiful sight indeed to see the children march and decorate the graves with wreaths and flowers as the sun was sinking in the West. Mr. Shultz pronounced the benediction. The G. A. R. expressed their thanks and gratitude to all who aided in making the 42nd Memorial Day among the brightest in their history.

Milesburg.

The fesitval on Saturday evening was a big success in every detail. The program was carried out to the letter and everybody in attendance expressed themselves as having a most enjoyable time. The horse race was great. Forrest Aikens was the winner, with John Brady second, and Mr. Alexander, third. The foot race was very exciting and was won by Edgar Miles. John Bryan was second, Roland Bryan, third, and Malcolm Housel, fourth. Tippie said that he could have won first easily but he was ashamed to take the money. The bicycle race was a hummer also. It was won by John Bullock. Ice cream and cake were served. Ross Wallace had charge of the cake walks and the cake auction, with George McCullough managing the confections and soft drinks, both having a very busy evening. The fruit bowl chanced off was won by J. I. Scholl, of Bellefonte. The Liberty cake, baked by Mrs. William Kline, also went to Bellefonte, Jerome Dale being the lucky man. The swing was won by Edward Quick, of Milesburg. Everything went off smoothly and we witnessed the largest crowd that has been in town in many years. We wish to thank the people in general for the helping hand they extended us in this event. It seemed that everybody was satisfied and nothing was left undone to make it a success. Our next festival will be held in August.

Walter Smith has purchased the carriage shop of L. C. Bullock and will be open for business by June 1. Carriage work of every description, painting etc., done and satisfaction guaranteed. Give Mr. Smith a trial.

Toner A. Hugg has installed a Brine Ice Cream plant and the prices will be as follows: $1 per gallon; 60c half gallon; 30c per quart.

The Baptist Sewing Society will hold a social on Saturday evening, June 25.

F. L. Wetzler has purchased a new Model G, 4-cylinder Franklin touring car, fully equipped and up to date in every respect.

Burgess John Confer and family, of Snow Shoe, attended the festival on Saturday evening, making the trip here in their auto.

David Holter, of Howard, was among those here for the festival.

Frank Johnson spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson.

James Campbell and family, from Tyone, were Milesburg visitors on Memorial day.

John Fulton and family, from Mill Hall, were visitors here on Monday.

Mrs. Emeline Hugg, of Philipsburg, is visiting her son, Toner, and daughter, Mrs. Walter Smith.

Edward Borst, and family, from Pitcairn, are visiting Mrs. Borst's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Craine.

Ice cream cones at Toner Hugg's.

Miss Olive Smith is suffering from quinsy.

Broze Swartz and family, from Snow Shoe, spent Memorial Day in Milesburg.

After spending several weeks with relatives and friends here, Homer Noll and family have returned to their home at Tyrone.

Thomas Quick, of Julian, spent Sunday here with his son, Edward.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Harvey, of State College, visited on Monday with Misses Jennie and Annie Adams

Charles Thomas and wife, from Lewistown, spent Sunday at the home of the former's father, W. B. Thomas.

Clinton Swartz, of Tyrone, visited this week with his father, John Swartz.

Memorial Day marked the formal opening of the new athletic field, which is almost completed. The Milesburg baseball club crossed bats with Jim. Hughes' Academy Reserves, which went down to defeat, 9-7. At 2 P. M. the game between Milesburg and Central City was called, the former winning, 10-6. Both games on the new field were thus captured by Milesburg.

Foley's Kidney Remedy may be given to children with admirable results. It does away with bed wetting, and is also recommended for use after measles and scarlet fever. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Scotia.

William Hastings, one of the oldest employes of Scotia, died on Friday morning, last, in the Methodist Hospital, in Philadelphia, where he had been taken the previous week for treatment. He was born at Birmingham, July 1, 1844, making his age 65 years, 10 months and 28 days. At the age of 17 he enlisted in the 22nd Cavalry and had a dashing and brilliant army career. At the close of the war he returned home and learned the blacksmith trade, which he followed for many years. Surviving him are his wife, four daughters and two sons: one daughter died in Kentucky some years ago. His funeral was held from his late home on Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the services being in charge of Rev. Mr. Shultz, of the Lutheran church, of which he was a member for many years. His remains were followed to the grave by a large concourse of friends and neighbors and eighteen comrades of the G. A. R. Interment was made in the Gatesburg cemetery.

Last Sunday being childrens day quite a number of strangers were in town, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Roan and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Murtorff, of Bellefonte; Mrs. John Rhoads, of Tipton; Mr. and Mrs. Will Murtorff, of State College, and Reuben Behers and sister, of Franklinville. Everything went off to perfection and all credit must be given to J. B. Parsons and Miss Marie Haugh for their patience in training the youngsters.

William Leitzell, one of the gayest of the gay old chaps in this end of the county, visited Scotia on Sunday as the guest of W. A. Fields. To all persons having a bad case of the "blues," we would recommend William before the doctor.

P. E. Hicks, the P. R. R. agent here, attended a meeting of R. R. agents in Tyrone last week.

Walter Parsons is all smiles just now. The stork visited his home for the first time on Monday last and left him a fine big boy. Walter thinks he will call him "Teddy." Couldn't get a better name, Walt.

Wallace Lytle and son, King, attended Buffalo Bill's show in Tyrone last week.

P. R. R. RELIEF WORK

Over $6,000 Per Day Paid to Men Unable to Work.

Some idea of the extent of the work which is done by the Relief Departments of the Pennsylvania Railroad System is gathered from a report issued which shows that during the month of April, 1910, an average of over $6,500.00 a day was paid to members unable to work, and to families of members who died. Since the Relief Departments for both the Lines East and West of Pittsburgh and Erie were established, some twenty-four years ago, the sum of $28,292,503.91 has been paid out in benefits.

On the Lines of Pittsburgh and Erie in the month of April, payments to the amount of $142,344.92 were made by the Relief Fund. In benefits to the families of members who died $49,292.83 were paid, while to members incapacitated for work the benefits amounted to $93,-052.09. The total payments on the Lines East of Pittsburgh since the Relief Fund was established in 1886 have amounted to $20,635, 599.10.

In April, the Relief Fund of the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh paid out a total of $60,510.50, of which $21,250.00 were for the families of members who died, and $39,360.50 for members unable to work. The sum of $7,661,904.81 represents the total payments of the Relief Fund of the Pennsylvania Lines West since it was established in 1889.

Raffling a Baby.

Consternation reigns in Joplin's most exclusive social circles on account of the proposal to raffle a baby in a charitable fair. It appears that when the committee in charge of the event cast about for the usual money-enticing features there was a crying hunger for something novel. The raffle was expected to be one of the main events of the occasion, and therefore much thought was given to the object of the chance bestowal. There are so few things in this world which have not been raffled that the puzzled women were hard put to it. But an inspiration illuminated the mind of one matron, and in a flash she suggested that the committee select a baby from a nearby foundling home and sell chances on it.

But there were a number of thoughtful women who saw in this plan something like sacrilege. They protested to their fellow-committee members, but in vain. Then it was proposed to ask the mayor to intervene and stop the outrage. The mayor of Joplin, as it happens, is a wise and good man when duly coached, and he says the raffle shall not take place. The majority of the committer say it shall. And there you are.

What a pitiful, pathetic spectacle this helpless little baby would present, lying in its basket and surrounded by men and women throwing dice or drawing numbers for its possession! A baby orphan is a tragedy of life that should stir the deepest and most solemn reflections. What has it done that fate should cast it upon the inhospitable shores of a selfish world? Isn't there enough of the element of chance in the average orphan's melancholy existence without men and women mocking the purposes of God by holding a baby raffle? These good women of Joplin must be given credit for meaning well, but what would the woman who made this suggestion think if her own infant were garnished with ribbons and laces and offered for sale to the highest bidder or the holder of a lucky ticket?

We predict that this baby raffle will never be held. The thing is too repugnant to be thought of as an actuality. Even if the whole proposition is merely a joke, it is a ghastly pleasantry abhorrent to thoughtful manhood and womanhood.

How Not to Comb Your Hair.

Just as surely as hair is woman's crowning glory it is man's glorious crowning. That is, to those that have it. Those whose heads have pushed up through their hair usually use a huckaback towel for the delicate process of parting the hair, but unless one has the peculiar requirements it is not worth while to cultivate them.

Men with low, squatting foreheads should not pull their hair down over their brows, and men whose foreheads are beginning to work back should invite their locks down. If your hair has quietly slipped down toward your ears on each side, leave it there. If you bring it up in strings and wisps it will merely look like climbing vines, and will never really have the free and easy, homelike appearance that ought to be the part of all natural hair.

Do not part your hair any earlier than you can help. Hair is in a hurry these days, anyway. Usually it doesn't stay more than long enough to make sure that the baby is going to be a boy before it hastens off. It will part of itself soon enough, the best you can do.

Before combing your hair you should get acquainted with the architecture of your face. If your face is of the harvest moon variety, do not inlay your hair. Puff it up as much as possible. It's better to look like a feather duster on a Monday morning than a scratched billiard-ball on a Saturday night.

But if your face is of a long, galloping ensemble, do not encourage your hair to fluff. Instead keep it down close to headquarters. If your head inclines to run up to a cone, do not spread your hair around in imitation of a palm-tree thatch; rather fluff it up and 'windrow it for fear some unbred person will begin to talk about Spring radish tops. Homer Croy in The Delineator.

The City Man as a Farmer.

What can the city man expect in the country? The possibilities are home, health, and a fair competence, with independence and peace of mind. Before you reject this inventory with a sneer, let me ask if you have these things now, or if life could really give you greater things? They are all very possible on a farm. Your city man will expect more, when, if he would but realize it, these things cover all there is of life—more than the millionaire can buy. In fact, as the coldest dash of the cold water, I would, to begin with, tell the city man that, unless he is a philosopher and can find contentment in humble things, he would better stay where he is. I have known city men to locate in the country with very large ideas. They promise to "show these old fellows how to farm" long before a furrow is turned. They have a sad awakening; for, somehow, in spite of their apparently careless method, these "old farmers" have the experience which enables them to take a living from the land. There is a sort of "instinct" which comes from the soil, and which the city man, surrounded by bricks and stone, cannot yet realize.—From "Back to the Land" in the June METROPOLITAN MAGAZINE.

The Menace of Japan.

The greatest example of the power of rational organization and efficiency principles is not in the German upbuilding, but in the Japanese actual creation in a single generation of a great world power. In 1867 Japan was still feudal. The merchant guild and the thieves' guild were classed together, both beneath contempt. Her peasantry was impoverished; her finest men and women, feudal dependents without initiative. When it was still a treason punishable by death, a few of the Samurai left Japan, not for wealth or amusement of conquest of any kind, but to absorb whatever there might be good in the Western civilization and to bring it back for use in their own beloved country. They conspicuously, consistently, and intelligently put von Moltke's organization into effect in upbuilding their fatherland, and also applied all the twelve principles of efficiency, which they had probably independently recognized and accepted before they began their quest. In thirty years, Japan with her 40,000,000 people was able to vanquish China with her 400,000,000. In another five years, Russia, the colossus of the North, that had shattered Napoleon I Russia, the dread of Great Britain, of France of Germany for 90 years—went down in def at. American sympathies were with Japan, as much superior in principle to ours as were her army and navy to those of Russia, began to make us cry out in cowardly fear.

It is not the flesh and blood and brains of the Japanese that make them industriously dangerous; it is not their money, for they are poor, not their equipment, for they have but little, not their material esources, because they are meagre. They are dangerous as industrial competitors because we are dragging along under a type of organization that makes high efficiency impossible—and they are not; because we have not even awakened and they have--to the fact that principles applied by mediocre men are more powerful for good than the spasmodic floundering of unusually great men—Engineering Magazine.

How To Keep a Wife's Love.

If your wife does not love you as she did when you were married, you must have fallen off in your attentions. Remember that a wife is only a sweetheart a few years later. Make her believe that she is still your sweetheart.

When you go home from business have the maid send your name up just as in the old days. A wife likes these little attentions, and if she is the right sort, she will send down word that she will be down in a few minutes. Then put a five-pound box of candy in a prominent place and wait patiently. When you hear her coming, run to meet her and kiss her in a manly way as if you had waited all day for the privilege. Then give her the candy. If there is but one chair in the room let her sit in it while you stand. Now tell her the events of the day in the office in a witty way that will appeal to her love of fun.

When the dinner-bell rings, hand her a bunch of American Beauties, pull out her chair for her and tie her napkin round her neck youself. Then, with a low bow, seat yourself opposite her and begin to praise the food. Ask her to make sprightly remarks, and laugh heartily at them. Urge her to tell you about the cook's doings. Just before dessert, show her the orchestra seats you have bought for the opera for that night.

Never light a cigar until you have asked her whether she objects to smoke. She may say no, but there is no telling when her taste may change, and no gentleman will smoke when his wife objects to it. Give her twice as much as she wants for an allowance and always forestall any requests she may be about to make.

In this way you will retain your wife's love, and forever lead a Darby and Joan life. Charles Battell Loomis in The Delineator.

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experience of Bellefonte People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Bellefonte residents on the following subject will interest and benefit thousands of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

Mrs. L. Ingram, 383 B. Bishop St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have done me a world of good and I feel that I cannot speak too highly of them. I suffered intensely from backache and my kidneys gave me a great deal of annoyance. Nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Green's Pharmacy Co. For the Children

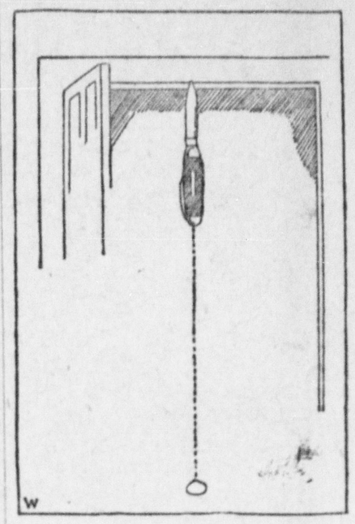
How to Crack a Nut Without Touching It.



THY IT THIS WAY.

A sharply pointed knife with a heavy handle is stuck very lightly into the lintel of a door, and the nut that is to be cracked is placed under it, so that when the knife is released by a touch the nut is cracked.

What simple and certain plan can you suggest for making sure that the knife shall hit the nut exactly in the middle without fail? Here it is:

Hold a cup of water so that it will wet the handle of the knife, then remove it and place the nut exactly on the spot where the drop of water falls from the handle.

The Surprise.

All the players but one must stand in a circle, but not with hands joined. Their hands must be held behind their backs with the palms turned outward, and they must all keep their eyes on the ground. If any one looks up he or she must pay a forfeit. The one left out takes a handkerchief and dances lightly around the circle and slips the handkerchief into any one's hand she chooses. No one will know to whom it is given, for all eyes are looking at the floor. Then suddenly the one to whom the handkerchief is given will whisk it up at one of the others. The person touched will be surprised, of course, but she must dart off instantly, for the one outside is on the watch and will strive to catch her. If she succeeds the captive becomes "handkerchief bearer," but if the one pursued gets around the circle and back to her place then the first bearer pays a forfeit and continues in the office.

Spoons—A Game.

This game is a variety of the old time favorite, "blind man's buff." The players form a circle. One stands in the center, blindfolded, with his hands extended before him, holding a spoon in each hand. The other players march round him, clapping their hands in time to a tune that may be sung or played on the piano in marching time. When the blind man calls out "Spoons!" the others stop, and he finds his way to any player he can reach and tries to find out who he or she is by touching with the spoons only. He may use them as he likes, but it is usually only a lucky guess if he is right. If wrong he must try again and continue blind till he finds a successor by means of the spoons. The one rightly guessed is then blindfolded and takes his place.

Why John Was Late.

Father—How is it, John, that you come home late to dinner every evening?

John—That's 'cause the town clock's so big.

Father—What's the clock got to do with it?

John—It's so big it takes the hands an awful long time to get around it. If you'd buy me a little watch like yours I'd get home a great deal quicker.

Conundrums.

What is the difference between a spendthrift and a feather bed? One is hard up and the other soft down.

Why is love like a canalboat? Because it is an internal transport.

Why did not Eve have the measles? Because she'd Adam (had 'em).

Why are little birds always sad in the morning? Because their little bills are all over dew (due).

Master Robin.

Of all the chaps who come with spring
I love dear robin best.
He is the first to sing his song,
The first to build his nest.
He greets you, too, as you pass by
With such a note of joy,
I do believe he has a heart
Exactly like a boy.

He's not a coward—no, not he.
He never takes a dare,
But if there's any fun around
He's sure to take his share.
Besides, he is a gentleman
Who's always nicely dressed
In quite a stylish swallowtail
And very handsome vest.

He steps quite like a dandy when
He's out on dress parade,
And, though Jack Frost is watching him,
He's not a bit afraid.
But, independent as you please,
He heeds nobody's call
And sings just when he has a mind
In springtime or in fall.

He's good friends, too, with all the flowers
And wakes them from their sleep.
'Tis at the sound of his dear voice
That they begin to peep.
I love him and his song, and when
I hear it sweet and clear
I shout, "Now hurry up, Miss Spring,
For Master Robin's here!"

Milady's Mirror

The patent finger tips are identical in principle with the thumbscrews of olden times. They are designed to give the proper tapering effect to the fingers and are shaped like thimbles, fitted with a screw that tightens them. Like the chin straps, these are worn for hours at a time. Beginning with no more than an ordinary close fit, the steady turning of the screws, hour by hour and day by day, keeps up a constant pinching of the finger tips until their outline is changed completely, and, although there is no actual pain, the nervous irritation caused by the constant pressure on the ends of the fingers is intense. For the gymnastic part of the treatment most of the bending motions that go with the use of the ordinary mechanical apparatus are employed, re-enforced by massages that leave both operator and subject limp as rags. Diet also plays an important part, and the woman who is so unfortunate as to have a pronounced tendency toward stoutness is condemned to live almost exclusively on lettuce and raw green foods generally. Butter, milk, cream and sweets, of course, are absolutely forbidden.

To Keep White Hair White.

People who have white hair have their troubles, like the rest of us. A special wash must be used to keep it of the silvery whiteness desired, and any tonic applied to strengthen the roots and prevent falling out will almost invariably yellow or discolor it.

Some who have tried it say the most satisfactory tonic application for gray hair is white vaseline. It is not to be applied to the hair, but to the scalp. The hair must be parted at close intervals and the vaseline rubbed into the scalp with the finger tips. Pains must be taken to keep the grease from the hair as much as possible.

The hairbrush should be kept perfectly clean, being frequently washed in water in which a little ammonia has been put and well rinsed.

Do not use the ordinary laundry bluing to bleach the hair. Buy a little indigo at a drug store and dissolve it. A few drops in a basin of water, enough to make it a pale blue, will make it whiten the hair as bluing whitens clothes. Beware of using too much blue, as that gives the hair a dingy, dirty color.

Laundry bluing is not made of indigo. It is a dilution of prussian blue, a preparation of iron.

Buttermilk Fad.

There is a fad for buttermilk just now.

It is taken internally and also used on the skin.

Many women advocate it as a beautifier, and, since it is harmless, there could be no objection to trying it.

The milk is applied to the face and neck with a soft sponge and allowed to dry on.

It is washed off after about ten minutes with hot water, finishing with cold.

The skin will probably feel drawn and prickly while the milk is drying, but this does not mean any bad effects.

There is grease in buttermilk as well as acid, so that one might reasonably expect some result from its use.

The Daily Bath.

Some women say that they have not the vitality to withstand a daily bath. That is usually the case when the bath is considered a bother and too much strength is expended in the scrubbing and rubbing. The most beneficial bath is the quick one that is over within three minutes. Such a bath is a tonic. It is not necessary to get into the tub. Merely go over the body speedily, bathing away the dust and secretions of the skin, rinsing quickly and rubbing briskly until the skin fairly tingles. If one is nerve tired a hot bath just before going to bed will act as a soothing, restful comforter.

Digging For the Complexion.

Probably if the right doctors and a few quacks were persistently to recommend stone breaking as a sure and certain way of improving the complexion and the physique there would, says a contemporary, be a rush of fair volunteers for this employment. They are now telling us that if we want to be thoroughly healthy and absolutely beautiful we must dig daily, and already the craze is spreading. A picturesque costume for the exercise has even been suggested. Digging parties are proposed, and before we know where we are we shall have digging instructors on the scene.

It Prevents Double Chin.

Massage constantly given for five minutes daily will, as a rule, prevent the formation of a double chin, or when the increased fold exists massage will remove it. For removal the work is severe; for prevention it must be strong enough to create stimulation or increased circulation of the blood in that region of the face to be reduced. Rubbing may be done from the point of the chin up to the ears along the jawbone and below it. In either case a dash of cold water must follow.

POISE OF A WOMAN OF 40

It is Then, With Serenity of Wisdom, That She is Most Attractive.

Is is a common feminine mistake to drench the fortieth birthday with tears. Don't do it. It is by no means the milestone that marks the scepter. See the biography of that reigning belle of history, one Cleopatra, who had passed her forthieth year before she was heard of outside of Egypt, and began to make copy for Shakesphere; and one Helen of Troy, who set the world warring before she was forty. Even the novelist, beginning to realize this fact, is utlizing the woman of forty plus for heroines for his novel. Robert Hickens draws his Bella Donna as forty-two, and marvelously beautiful.

Your fortieth birthday need not be a sign of the passing of your beauty. It depends upon yonrself whether it shall pass soon after you cross the meridian line, for it is in the power of every intelligent, progressive, well-poised woman to move back the hands of the time clock ten years-perhaps fifteen.

The woman of forty has beauty plus. Plus experience, which is a beautifier, if viewed aright. For, veiwed aright, the bitter husk of experience is cast away, the remaining one as of the solid assets of life. The woman of forty who would stay long at the meridian of life must cast no brooding looks backward. Lot's wife is an example to every woman in the world, especially the woman of forty or more.

The woman of forty can talk, and what she says is not merely empty sound. She has lived and distilled from her life wisdom, and to that wisdon both the wise and foolish listen. To talk well is to be entertaining, and man wants entertainment. He has fewer resources for amusement. Men are lonelier beings than the women. Cast adrift for a few hours from his professional pursuits, the average man is a pitiable creature. He has none of the smaller concerns of his home keeping toilet, of visiting, to amuse him, and as as a sex he is not fond of books. Ada Patterson, in the New York American.

A Most Considerate Deer.

"Some years ago, when I was traveling in Michigan," said W. J. Speller, a traveling man of Chicago, Ill., who is recuperating from a recent attack of rheumatism at the Hotel Caswell, "I had an experience which I have always remembered as one of the most interesting and peculiar of my life. At that time there was no railroad connection between Marquette and Alpena; the country was rough and unsettled, and abounded in game of all descriptions, particularly deer. I was stopping at Marquette, and I accepted gladly when a friend invited me to go on a deer hunt with him. We drove out of the town perhaps a mile or two, and were passing through a valley that was shut in by high hills on either side. The place was very narrow. As we were talking, my friend suddenly gripped my arm and said excitedly. There is a deer up there on the hill, running like mad to escape some hunting dogs. I looked and saw a magnificent buck, coming at a great rate, right for the edge of the gully, about 20 feet above our heads. As I watched the deer, my friend fired, while our horse was still going at a fair pace, the bullet striking the deer and killing him instantly.

"Can you imagine our amazement when a great buck, toppling down the hillside, fell directly into our wagon, as cleverly as if we had placed him there? Yes, sir," continued the narrator, "that buck knew just where to fall, but he did give us an awful jolt." Baltimore American.

Trees and Character.

In the history of the great uprising which caused the Roman emperor to cry "Varus give me back my legions." Arminius and the Teutoberger Forest are inseparably associated.

The interesting suggestion is offered by a thoughtful correspondent that there has been more than accidental reason for the association, that in some occult way the Teutoberger Forest was a part of Arminius.

Is it true that in some way not understood and yet not wholly unappreciated we owe something of the progress of the world to the forest primeval? Is if true that so long as men have lived with trees and wood working has been their principal occupation, their civilization has been aggressive and dominant and the moment the hills were denuded and the dryads and the naiads were banished, sterility of mind and character as well as of soil was followed?

Every writer on the American indian notes the difference between the timber and the plains tribes. The former were the Indians of history. The plainsman has been mean, sneaking, cowardly, as compared with his brother of the woods, and inferior in both body and mind.

It is remarkable when we come to think of it that Germany maintains a population two-thirds as great as that of the United States on a territory smaller than the State of Texas. At first glance everybody assumes that the vast forest preserves are in the way, an imposition on the crowded millions. But the German loves his trees, and perhaps is guided by an unerring instinct when he insists that for every tree cut another shall be planted.

If this association of trees with man's outlook is not wholly fanciful there is a reason for conservation infinitely more compelling than the disposition of rainfall. Sterility of soil has never been half so much to be dreaded as sterility of mind.—From the Des Moines (Ia.) Register and Leader.

Hints For Nursing the Sick.

The value of Initiative—There are some people who never seem able to do the simplest action without wondering what "other people" will say or think about it.

You feel like that youself sometimes, don't you?

And it's a habit of mind that is very apt to dwarf your development and individuality.

And people who have always before their mind's eye the great mysterious "They are only too likely to lose their power of deciding definitely on any course of action without first asking advice all round.

And that's not a good state to be in.

It's quite right to ask advice sometimes, of course, but don't get into the habit of leaning on other people for every single little thing you do.

If you think a certain course of action right, have the courage of your opinion, and carry it out.

You may be wrong sometimes, but if you wait to listen to what other people say you'll find it very difficult to come to any satisfactory conclusion on any subject.

In an Invalid's Room—Here are a few "tips" sent in by a reader who has just nursed a sister through a long illness, and learned by experience many things to do, and to avoid doing, if one wants the invalid to keey happy and comfortable.

I suppose an invalid's room is always rather difficult to keep tidy (she says). Litter of all sorts soon collects, and I find the best plan is to make up one's mind to "tidy up" several times during the day, because nothing is more depressing than to lie in bed and look at a room strewn with litters.

I make a point, too, of occasionally changing any pictures that are in the room. An invalid's eyes become tired and irritated if they have to look at the same outlook day after day and week after week, and it is so easy to get a little variety by bringing in pictures from of the other rooms for a week or two.

Another good plan is to change the furniture around occasionally and put different ornaments about. Even if it is not an improvement it makes a change, which is a great thing where an invaiid is concerned.

A screen to draw round the head of the bed is useful for keeping off draughts while the room is being thoroughly aired, but if there is not one handy, I find a clothes horse covered with a quilt or rug does almost equally well.

Shading a Room—Nothing is more painful when one is ill than the glaring, uncertain light of day shining on the bed, yet curtains or blinds are apt to make the room too dark. I find it a good plan to stretch art muslin of a soft green gives a most pleasantly shaded light in the room, but does not make it too dark.

Do not leave the room even for a short time without putting a bell or some means of communication within resch of the patient. It is rather an alarming feeling to an invalid to be left entirely cut off from the outside world.

Be sure that the castors on the bed, tables and chairs are well oiled, also the door hinges. The fewer sounds there are to vex the patient's ears the better.

Keeping Blankets Aired—It is often a difficult matter in a small house to keep spare blankets aired so that they can be used to make up a visitor's bed at once, if required in a hurry.

I always manage to keep my extra blankets aired by placing them folded in between my upper and under mattresses. And I keep them quite free from dust and dirt by the following method:

First I spread an old sheet out over the under mattress and place the folded blankets on this, turning the sides and tops of the sheet over, so that the blankets are quite protected from dust and dirt. Philadelphia Inquirer.

Country With One Railroad

Persia, like Turkey, is awakening from her sleep of centuries, and aspires to reassume the position she once occupied in the affairs of the great world. She has a constitution and some other modern improvements, but she hasn't caught up with the times enough to provide herself with a real transportation system. Horses and donkeys still constitute the passenger and freight carrying resources of the empire which once dominated the east. Still, Persia has one railroad. It is 10 miles long, and runs from Teheran, the capital, to the shrine of a defunct shah. The general manager of this road hasn't much trouble in figuring his 10-mile costs. Strikes do not disturb his slumbers. The finance committee doesn't bother itself with dividend policies or bond issues, nor does it lie awake nights wondering if rate-regulating bills are going to pass the Persian parliament. Moody Magazine.

The Scrap Book

They All Told Him.

The old gentleman from the back lots was holding up a line of passengers at the ticket office of a Chicago station the other day.

"I want a ticket to New York."

"Twenty dollars."

"What? Twenty dollars? The last time I went it was only ten!"

"Twenty dollars, please."

"How long has the fare been raised? I ain't got no $20!"

"Twenty dollars is the fare. Hurry up!"

"I ain't going to pay no twenty. I know I only put up ten last time."

"Then get out of the way. Don't you see you're holding up all these people? If you want to go to New York it will cost you $20. Move on!"

"Where can I go for $10, then?"

Well, the line of people told him in one emphatic monosyllable.

The Test.

I look into my neighbor's eyes
And twist a smile that's strangely grim.
I'm thinking, Would he feel surprise
To know just what I think of him?

I gaze into my dear friend's face,
And with this thought my soul is stirred:
What revolution would take place
Were I to tell her what I've heard?

I stare into my mirror there
With eyes that hunger to be true
And say aloud, Would it be fair
To mention all I know of you?

—Lurana W. Sheldon.

Beaten by a Professional.

Hank Johnson had long enjoyed the distinction of being the homeliest man in Canyonville, so it was somewhat of a shock to him when Steve Billings came into the Tourists' Retreat and announced, "Boys, there's a homelier man than Hank over at the depot—feller by the name of Charles Battel Loomis, that gives lectures."

Without a word Hank started across the road and was gone some time.

"Waal," Steve said when Hank returned, "d'ye give up?"

"Heck!" Hank replied, with supreme disgust. "He's a professional."—Success Magazine.

Spoiled the Treatment.

She was unquestionably a stout woman. She occupied more than one person's share of space in the street car and quite overshadowed her trim companion. "You really ought to try something," said her friend in reply to an aside from the stout lady herself regarding her weight. "A woman I know reduced herself twenty pounds in a very few months by taking a treatment. I can find out what it was if you like."

"You're very kind," said the stout lady, "but I've quite given up trying to get thin. Oh, I know," she went on as the other interrupted, "but you cannot induce me to take up any new fads. The last one I tried settled that. They made me imagine that I was a beautiful lily swaying in the summer breeze from side to side! I decided that was ridiculous for a woman of my weight and so"—

"Perhaps you didn't give it a fair trial," suggested her friend.

"Perhaps not, but my husband came in just when I was being a lily, and he"—

"Men never understand, do they?" said her friend.

Too Much For His Faith.

"The late Bishop Hare," said a Sioux Falls physician, "used, very reasonably, to impute skepticism to misunderstanding.

"He once told me about a business man of skeptical tendencies who said to him:

"'My dear Mr. Hare, I do not refuse to believe in the story of the ark. I can accept the ark's enormous size, its odd shape and the vast number of animals it contained. But when I am asked, my dear doctor, to believe that the children of Israel carried this unwieldy thing for forty years in the wilderness—well, there, I'm bound to say, my faith breaks down.'"

A Test That Failed.

Her husband was an oculist, and she desired to help him. She studied hard and then sought to begin practice on the negro cook. She placed the cook in position and then began with the cards that contained the big and little letters. She selected the extreme lenses, and each time she tried one she said:

"Martha, can you read the letters with that lense?"

"No," the cook said; "I can't read it yet."

The ambitious wife tried and tried, going through her entire supply of lenses, but the result was the same. Finally the cook said:

"'Tain't no use. You never will teach me to read that way. I ought to have learned when I was a kid."—Kansas City Star.

Her Long Suit.

"Mrs. Promoter informs me that you and I are to be partners in the whist game at her card party tonight," imparted the major, meeting the clever Mrs. Flurry on the avenue. "I didn't know you played whist."

"Oh, I play a little, major. It's a beautiful day, isn't it?"

"Yes. Now let me give you a pointer," rejoined the major, who was as earnest in his whist playing as he was redoubtable. "In the game tonight if you have long suit use it."

"Very well, major, I shall. There goes Mrs. Skittle, whom I want to see. Goodby, major. I'll see you at the whist game, and I'll wear my long suit."—Judge's Library.

GOT THE EGGS FRESH

They Were Turtle Eggs and Agassiz Wanted Them.

A WILD RACE AGAINST TIME.

The Professor Had to Have the Eggs Before They Were Three Hours Old, and This Is the Story of How the Hunter Made Good His Promise.

When Professor Louis Agassiz was writing a book on the turtles of the United States it became necessary for him to have some fresh turtle eggs. He engaged Mr. Jenks of Middleboro, about forty miles from Cambridge, to get them for him. Mr. Jenks promised that the eggs should be in Agassiz's hands before they were three hours old. Mr. Jenks, who told the tale to a writer in the Atlantic Monthly, had to wait by a certain pond for the turtles to come out and lay their eggs in the sand. Finally, after weeks of waiting, one morning about 4 o'clock a turtle crawled up the beach, partly buried herself in the soft sand and laid her eggs. Mr. Jenks went on to say:

As she did so the distant clock struck 4. There was no train till after 9, and the eggs must be in Cambridge in three hours.

I laid the eggs on a bed of sand in the bottom of my pail, filled in between them with more sand, so with another layer to the rim, and, covering all over smoothly with more sand, I ran back for my horse. He knew as well as I that the turtle had laid and that he was to get those eggs to Agassiz.

I let him out. I shouted to him, holding to the dasher with one hand, the pail of eggs with the other, not daring to get off my knees, although the bang on them as we pounded down the wood road was terrific. We had nearly covered the distance to the pike when ahead of me I heard the sharp whistle of a locomotive.

With a pull that lifted the horse from his feet I swung him into a field and sent him straight as an arrow for the track.

By some stroke of luck I got on the track and backed off before the train hit my carriage. But the maneuver was successful, for the engineer stopped, and I swung aboard the cab—hatless, dew soaked, smeared with yellow mud and holding as if it were a baby or a bomb a little tin pail of sand.

"Throw her wide open," I commanded—"wide open! These are fresh turtle eggs for Professor Agassiz of Cambridge. He must have them before breakfast."

The engineer and the fireman no doubt thought that I was crazy, but they let me alone, and the fast freight rolled in swiftly to Boston.

But misfortune was ahead. We slowed down in the yards and came to a stop. We were put on a siding to wait no one knew how long.

I suddenly jumped from the engine, slid over a high fence and bolted for the street. In the empty square stood a cab.

The cabman saw me coming. I waved a dollar at him and then another, dodged into the cab, slammed the door and called out: "Cambridge! Harvard college! Professor Agassiz's house! I've got eggs for Agassiz!" and I pushed another dollar up at him through the hole.

"Let him go!" I ordered. "Here's another dollar for you if you make Agassiz's house in twenty minutes!"

We flew to Cambridge. There was a sudden lurch, and I dived forward, rammed my head into the front of the cab and came up with a rebound that landed me across the small of my back on the seat and sent half of my pail of eggs helter skelter over the floor. But we were at Agassiz's house. I tumbled out and pounded the door.

"Agassiz!" I gasped when the maid came. "I want Professor Agassiz, quick!"

She protested that he was in bed and threatened the police. But just then a door overhead was flung open, a great, white robed figure appeared on the dim landing above, and a quick, loud voice called excitedly:

"Let him in! Let him in! I know him! He has my turtle eggs."

And the apparition, slipperless and clad in anything but an academic gown, came sailing downstairs. The great man, his arms extended, laid hold of me with both hands and, dragging me and my precious pail into his study, with a swift, clean stroke laid open one of the eggs as the watch in my trembling hands ticked its way to 7 as if nothing unusual were happening in the history of the world.

A Fearful Poison.

From the microbe which gives rise in human beings to the disease known as tetanus, or lockjaw, a poison called tetanine is obtained which is over 100 times more powerful than strychnine. A fragment of tetanine so small as to be invisible to the naked eye would kill almost instantaneously the strongest man. One fifteen-thousandth part of a grain of it has caused the death of a horse 1,600,000,000 times its own weight.—Pearson's.

Woman's World

Mrs. LeRoy Signs President's Name 6,000 Times a Month.

MRS. JAMES A. LEROY.

Mrs. James A. LeRoy holds the unique position of having the authority to affix the signature of President Taft to patents issued by the land office at Washington. Of these there are some 6,000 a month. This is Mrs. LeRoy's sole duty, and when it is finished she may darn the stockings of her children or perform any other task that her personal desire may dictate.

There is in this post the element of great trust, but back of it there is more. There is an insight into the intimate side of the character of the chief executive and his loyalty to his friends.

When Mr. Taft first went to the Philippines there crossed over on the same boat James A. LeRoy and his young wife. Mr. Taft came to know them very well. Later on Mr. LeRoy became secretary to one of the Philippine commissioners. But before leaving the States he had been a newspaper man, and because of this it devolved upon him to hand out the news of the administration of the islands. For some years he was known as the Associated Press of the Philippines.

Later Mr. LeRoy's health failed, and he finally died of tuberculosis. Mrs. LeRoy and her three little children returned to their home in Michigan. Yet the chief executive never lost sight of them, and ever since he became president he has been quietly looking out for a cozy post in which he might install the widow of his former associate. Recently the vacancy referred to occurred in the land office which only served the purpose but lent particular significance to the appointment because of the intimacy of the service to be performed. Mrs. LeRoy accepted the position and is now performing the tasks in hand.

When the Business Girl Marries.

What the business girl wife has learned from the experience of others and association with them is impossible to the home body who has never taken an interest in the business affairs of her father or brothers.

The business girl wife has learned the valuable lesson of being silent when silence is golden. She should be a success because she knows the worries that beset a man in business.

Having had to work for money herself, the business girl knows the value of it. This working for money and often trying to dress neatly on a small salary have made her content to be economical, especially if her husband's salary be small.

This girl knows by experience that the workman needs the quiet, restful home when the day's work is ended. She has learned in her business career the necessity for system in all kinds of work. She knows the unfairness of asking her busy husband to execute household commissions. Her own experience in business has taught her this lesson.

If her husband should fail to make his appearance promptly at the dinner hour she will not grumble, for she has experienced the necessity of sometimes staying at the office when business demanded it. She knows, too, that the little bickerings between herself and her women friends are not pleasant for her husband to hear. She seems to be fitted by training to make him a happy, cheerful home.

Neckwear For Stout Women.

Choosing suitable neckwear, especially in warm weather, is a difficult task for elderly women.

Stout women, for instance, often experience much discomfort with only the slightest covering or pressure about the neck, and frequently the necessarily high collar worn by the thin type brings the same annoyance.

If the stout woman, however, would look her best she must eschew these soft, fluffy effects and finish the neckpiece with a pretty brooch, a single tab of lace, a tiny bow of silk in a delicate color or an equally small bow of dainty lingerie, choosing whichever she considers is "her style" and of course with the thought of how it will harmonize with the waist it is to adorn.

For instance, a waist that is buttoned in the back should not be decorated with a jabot that hangs down the front, but instead a small bow or tab should be worn.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows: "When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips.

Another from Newark, N. J. "I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

Cut This Out — Free To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO. Chicago, Ill. with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

Lawyer John Blanchard on Friday, last, delivered a lecture on "Corporation Organization" before the engineers of the senior class at State College.

Mrs. John Curtin will today give a tea in honor of Mrs. William S. Furst, who with Mr. Furst and daughter, Elizabeth is visiting at the Furst home on West Linn Street.

There will be a festival on Half-Moon Hill, on Saturday evening, June 4, a which ice cream, cake and other delicacies will be served. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the United Brethren church. All are cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Singheiser and child departed for their home at Renovo yesterday, after a very pleasant little visit at the Woodring home, on Howard Street. Mrs. Singheiser will be remembered as Miss Adaline Woodring.

A very pleasant visitor to our office several days ago was William Barndt, of Curtin, who took occasion to mark up the label on his copy of "The Republican." We agree with Mr. Barndt that a man enjoys his newspaper all the more when he can glance at the label and know that it is paid for in advance.

Most persons are knockers and a few are boosters. Knocking the steam heat company for failure to supply sufficient heat is the popular thing in Bellefonte. It was the program to cut off the steam heat for the summer yesterday, but owing to the very cold weather the steam was kept on. Here's tossing one of the very, very few flowers ever contributed to the steam heating company.

General James A. Beaver this week sailed for Holland. Mrs. Beaver did not accompany him but instead went to Huntingdon, where she will visit for a short time. Mrs. Emma Atwood, who has been living in California for the last seven or eight years, and who spent the winter in Philadelphia, is also visiting in Huntingdon and will accompany Mrs. Beaver to Bellefonte and remain with her while General Beaver is abroad.

Laird Curtin is going through the regular course of things that happen to all persons with their first automobile. Several days ago his brother, John, thought he would post himself on how to manipulate the numerous valves, levers, etc., and when Laird next got hold of the machine it was to discover that about ten gallons of gasoline had escaped. John had very innocently turned a valve that stood between the gasoline tank and the garage floor. Next came a blowout; just to help Laird forget about the gasoline. At this rate Laird quite naturally believes that he will soon be entitled to be regarded as a veteran.

Former Senator Cyrus E. Woods, of Greensburg, chief counsel for the Pittsburg Coal Company, was a pleasant caller at "The Republican" office on Tuesday. With Mrs. Woods he had been spending Memorial Day at the old homestead, at Boalsburg, and stopped over in Bellefonte for a few minutes while enroute home. His brief visit to our office was just to recall old times. Senator Woods is among the most prominently mentioned for the Republican nomination for Governor and we know of nobody who would make a more worthy successor to Governor Stuart. If the honor should happen to come his way Senator Woods, will, of course, accept it, but he is making no active canvass for the nomination. On the contrary, he is planning to take Mrs. Woods on a trip abroad just about the time the Republican State convention is being held at Harrisburg, on June 22.

A Pretty House Party.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hockenbury was the scene of a very pretty party, given on Tuesday evening, last, in honor of their niece, Miss Gladys Spicher, of Cresson, Pa. The evening was very delightfully spent with games and music. Clarence Rhoads presided at the organ and royally entertained those present with several very fine selections, followed by songs by Misses Clara and Minnie Hastings and Mary Dunlap. The evening passed only too quickly and then Mr. and Mrs. Hockenbury, with the splendid hospitality for which they are noted, invited all present to the dining room, where a table was laden with good things to eat. It is said that Newton Dunlap established a brand new record on eating, surpassing his record at the famous sauer kraut supper. With a unanimous vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Hockenbury the guests finally departed for their respective homes. The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Simcox, of Kane, who are visiting at the home of William Sholl, on Bishop Street.

Bellefonte Academy Reception.

The annual reception and dance of the Bellefonte Academy will occur on Friday, June 3.

All past and present patrons, all past and present students, and all friends of the Academy, are cordially invited to the reception, which takes place at the main Academy building from 8 to 10 o'clock. The electric and lantern illumination, the music by Christy Smith's Orchestra and the privilege of meeting friends for a chat on Academy Hill, make a program that is at once beautiful and delightful. These receptions always are attended with greatest success and those who stay away miss a social treat. The school rooms are transformed into most attractive reception rooms. The dance under the auspices of the Alumni, and under graduates takes place at the Armory from 10-3.

The committee in charge consists of Thomas Beaver, Gilbert Meyers, Percy Eisenbeis, Willard J. Boyd and George Lee.

Why Frank Steele Rages.

Have you noticed the deep frown that adorns the face of Frank Steele, one of the employees of the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania? There's a reason for the frown. It is partly explained in the numerous telephone messages he is receiving daily, inquiring the price per pound of chickens. His answer is, that it depends entirely on who sells the chickens. It seems that Frank has of late become quite a chicken fancier and to prove his expert knowledge of fine stock has been paying 19 cents per pound for a large flock of chickens. Mrs. Steele looked the chickens over and decided that they were all right, but nothing extra. Accordingly when a purchaser happened along and volunteered to buy the chickens she sold them for 12 cents per pound. When Frank arrived home and heard the news he fainted.

Will Lay Cornerstone.

The cornerstone of the proposed new A. M. E. church building will be placed with appropriate services, on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Rev. W. B. Anderson, of Pittsburg, presiding elder, will have charge of the services, assisted by Rev. P. E. Paul and others. On Monday evening, June 6, an entertainment for the benefit of the church will be given in Garman's Opera House by Miss Henrietta Vinton Davis, the well known elocutionist and dramatic impersonator. Miss Davis has a natian-wide reputation and a fine entertainment may be expected. Admission will be 35 cents, including reserved seat; 25 cents, general admission, and 15 cents for children.

"Gaul's Holy City."

Gratifying progress is being made in the plans for the grand oratorio, "Gaul's Holy City," which will be rendered in the Presbyterian church on the evening of June 9, under the direction of Professor Sherwood E. Hall. The affair will be under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Bellefonte Hospital, to which institution the proceeds will be devoted. There will be a chorus of fifty voices, as well as orchestra and pipe organ selections. By those having the entertainment in charge it is predicted that it will be one of the most elaborate and pleasing ever rendered in Bellefonte.

WILLIAM HASTINGS DEAD

Well Known Old Soldier Dies in Jefferson Hospital, at Philadelphia.

Another old soldier has answered the roll call away from home. On Friday morning, last, the sad message came from the Jefferson Hospital, at Philadelphia, announcing the death of William Hastings, who passed away there at 5 o'clock on the morning of that day. He had gone to the hospital about ten days prior to his death to have an operation performed. Peritonitis developed and resulted in his death.

William Hastings was born in Blair county, July 1, 1844, and with the opening of the Civil war he enlisted as a member of Co. I, 22nd Penna. Cavalry. He was a brave soldier and a good citizen. About 41 years ago he was married to Miss Emma Rider, of Gatesburg, at which place they spent the greater part of their married life. Of his father's family but one brother, John, of Colorado, and Mrs. William Cupp, of Centre Line, survive. One brother, was killed at Fredericksburg and to avenge his death, William enlisted. He was a faithful member of the Lutheran church and was also a member of William I. Furst Post, G. A. R. His widow, with the following children, survive: John and Charles, of Tyrone; Mrs. Lizzie Snyder and Mrs. Myrtle Rumberger, of Hollidaysburg; and Mrs. Anthaline Aikens, at home. A squad of his old comrades in arms laid him to rest on Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, in the Gatesburg cemetery, with Rev. J. S. Shultz, officiating.

PROF. J. ANGEL.

Eyesight Specialist.

Wednesday and Thursday, June 15 and 16

AT BROCKERHOFF HOUSE

To my Patrons and the Public: Having become established in Bellefonte and all over the county, as a successful Eye Specialist, and through the large increase in my business, I have concluded it will be to the best interest of myself and the public to make a reduction of 25 per cent in all my charges. This will enable those who have felt they could not afford to pay former prices to secure proper treatment for their eyes at the lowest possible expense. All parents are advised who have children that go to school who are not bright in learning or their studies, should have their eyes examined and see if they need glasses. You will thereby save lots of trouble and make good scholars of them. At the Brockerhoff House Wednesday and Thursday, June 15th and 16th.

MR. DRESSER:

we give our customers such good clothes that they gladly pay us the price we ask. We do not keep cheap, poor fitting clothing made out of poor cloth.

We have built up our business by making a profit, but we make only a fair profit. Holding up a customer would not pay us. We would rather hold up the quality of our clothing for this is what holds up our business.
